EVENTS IN EUROPE.

The Home Rule League Denounce the Treatment of Parnell.

Prevalence of Small Pox and Typhoid in Paris.

Destructive Floods in Spain—Illness of the Czarina—Cable Notes.

England.

LONDON, March 30.—There will be a nomination to-day in 134 constituencies, which will poll their votes this week, except where there is no opposition, in which case a nomination will be equivalent to election. The representation of Liverpool will be relatively as it stood in the last Parliament.

BENNETT'S HORSE WINS.

James Gordon Bennett's Muscadine won to-day the Park hurdle handicap plate; Red Hazard second, Peronation third; five starters.

France.

PARIS, March 30.—The health of the city continues below the average. Twelve hundred and six deaths occurred last week. Typhoid fever and small-pox are prevalent.

RELIGIOUS COMMUNITIES.

The unauthorized religious communities in France number 384 for men, with 7,444 members, and 602 for women, with 14,003 members. The bulk of these are not Jesuit, and will be summoned to submit their statutes if the statutes are unobjectionable. Paris and its suburbs contain 123 Jesuit communities, and the Jesuit colleges of France number twenty-seven.

PROF. NORDENSKJOLD

will be appointed commander of the Order of the Legion of Honor.

Russia.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 30.—The health of the Czarina is sensibly declining.

UNFOUNDED.

All reports of the early departure of the court to Livadia are unfounded.

Ireland.

DUBLIN, March 30.—The Home Rule League passed a resolution declaring the treatment of Parnell at Enniscarthy, by a hired mob, reflects the deepest disgrace on O'Clery and all concerned.

Persia.

TEHERAN, March 30.—At Tchikislar and Chatte the preparations of the Russians for the campaign are singularly backward. Their entire force is only 2,000.

Spain.

MADRID, March 30.—The rivers Jucar and Segura and their tributaries overflowed, and the towns of Alcira and Orihuela have been inundated.

The Dominion.

MONTREAL, March 30.—The Political Economy Club was called together last evening to discuss a commercial union between this country and the United States. The attendance was so small that it was considered advisable to defer the discussion.

THE TWO HUSBANDS.

A Missouri Romance in Which a Wife and Two Liege Lords Figured.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 30.—About two years since a very pretty widow of apparently about twenty-five years of age arrived in this city from Germany, and with her winning ways soon attracted to her a large number of friends, who, when informed by her that she had been divorced from a man who had a wife among the living, did all they could to make her life agreeable. Some months rolled around when one of our prominent citizens met her, became enamored, and finally proposed and was accepted. But a short time intervened between the engagement and a very quiet marriage, and the couple immediately settled down to the stern realities of life by going to housekeeping. Their life sped by pleasantly without a blot to mar their happiness until a few days since, when a well-dressed stranger put in his appearance and immediately repaired to their house. Imagine the astonishment of Mrs. —— when she recognized her former husband, whom she had almost forgotten. Explanations ensued and Mrs. B. learned that her second marriage was null and void, she never having been granted a divorce. Of course there was a scene and a protracted one. Husband No. 2 was hard to be convinced and was so shocked and startled that he sat a mum spectator. Peace was finally restored, explanations made and after a long and bitter contest it was decided that but one thing could be done and that was for the wife to go with husband No. 1, which she finally did, leaving husband No. 2 alone to ponder upon the strange and fickle fortunes that had marred his quiet and happy home. The story as told by the lady is that she married husband No. 1 in Dresden, and led a pleasant life of about twelve months, when one day she discovered something in her husband's correspondence that awakened her suspicions that all was not right, and upon an investigation learned that he had a wife living in Berlin. This, of course, was enough, and, applying for a divorce, she left the country and came to America. The gentleman is one of our most worthy and respected citizens and has general sympathy.

MEXICAN MELANGE.

A Spanish Organ Creates a Sensation—Grant and a Protectorate.

CITY OF MEXICO, March 20, VIA HAVANA.—The Spanish organ Viz de Espana has created a great sensation by bitterly denouncing the Mexican Government and people, accusing the latter of assassinating Spaniards on various occasions with impunity. The same journal ridicules the idea that by Gen. Grant's influence an American protectorate might be established. The Apaches driven from the United States territory have re-entered Chihuahua. Frontier papers accuse the American Government of selling American citizens' land beyond the boundary and within the limits of the State of Sonora.

A CINCINNATI TRAGEDY.

Two Well-Known Young Men Engage in a Fatal Affray.

CINCINNATI, March 30.—Chas. Theis, Jr., and Joseph Ritter, two well-known young men of Newport, Ky., attended a ball together at Eclipse Hall, last night, and during the night Theis was ordered away from the side of a young lady who had been brought to the ball by Henry Brown. Some trouble arose then, but it was settled without violence. About 5 o'clock, however, while going home, Brown and Ritter met Theis at Jefferson and Monmouth streets, and the quarrel was renewed, Brown knocking Theis down. At this point Ritter ran up with a drawn revolver, and, leveling it at the head of Theis, fired twice, both balls taking effect. Theis died in an hour. Ritter surrendered to officers. Both are young men of good character, but both were under the influence of liquor.

NEW YORK NOTES.

The Democratic Union and Tilden—Destitute Slovaks—The Tariff—Chinese Rice.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, March 30.—The Democratic Union is believed to include too many anti-Tilden men to accord it the power of arranging the differences in this State. The resolution adopted last night is not regarded as pointing toward Tilden, as it declares that "A candidate for the office of President should be a man whose convictions and works attest his faith in and devotion to Democratic principles, whose character should be spotless and free from suspicion of blemish, and it is only the candidate who comes up to this standard that will receive the aid of this Union in his election."

STARVING SLOVAKS.

There have arrived at Castle Garden lately more than a thousand Slovaks, all of whom are utterly destitute. For all, excepting 126, employment has been secured. Those are being fed and otherwise cared for out of the emigration fund.

A CELEBRATION SUGGESTED.

Anent the Yorktown celebration next year it is thought a commemoration of the surrender at Saratoga would be fitting. At Saratoga the American army was exclusively composed of Americans, led by an American, and, unaided, this army compelled 6,000 British to lay down their arms.

THE TARIFF.

Members of Congress from all parts of the country, but especially from the West and Northwest and some parts of the South, are receiving letters and newspapers which show that the tariff is the real question in the minds of the people.

SOUTH AMERICA.

Notwithstanding the agreement between the President of the Argentine Republic and the Governor of Buenos Ayres for reciprocal dismissal of their respective forces, a collision occurred on the 22d ult. between the citizens and National troops, and some of the former were wounded with bayonets, the soldiers alleging that they were attacked with cries of "Viva Buenos Ayres" and that an attempt was made to carry off the flag. Such was the heat during the march of the National soldiery, in review on the 22d inst., that, the men not having received their summer clothing, 200 fell down on the road and six died.

CHINESE RICE.

In 1878 California sent to China 209,000 barrels of flour and in 1879 235,000. Besides China takes more than half of the whole quicksilver product of the State. This flour enters China free of duty, but if the proposition now before Congress to double the present duty on Chinese rice should be adopted this act would probably lead to a duty being levied on California flour in China. The proposition to put this extra duty, amounting to 100 per cent ad valorem, on Chinese rice was made by a California Congressman.

THE ACADEMY OF DESIGN.

The day is a delightful one for the opening of the National Academy of Design, and half New York is treading to Central Park.

NOTES.

The amount raised by taxation in New York for charitable purposes increased in fifteen years from $1,125,000 to $2,600,000.

The Brooklyn Eagle, a sound Democratic newspaper, and of great influence hereabouts, says Tammany's clamor will help Tilden and it may nominate him.

The Republican organization to oppose Arthur's machine is now fairly under way. It is proposed for local purposes to unite with anti-Tammany Democrats.

The new steamer City of Rome, of the Inman line, will be the largest and most commodious passenger steamer afloat. Electric lights will be supplied the Inman steamships.

The State Survey Commission will report to the Legislature in favor of buying the land around Niagara Falls as a site for an international park. The Dominion Parliament has now a bill before it to establish a similar park on the Canadian shore of the Niagara.

Fish Cultures.

NEW YORK, March 30.—The ninth annual meeting of the American Fish Culturists' Association was begun this morning in Fulton Market. The hibernation of fish was the subject of an important paper by ex-Congressman Robert B. Roosevelt.

Last of the Family.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 30.—Richard Van Rensselaer, aged 83, the last member of the old family, and President of the Merchants' National Bank, died suddenly this evening.

Plead Not Guilty.

NEW YORK, March 30.—Eugene Fairfax Williamson, who gave so much annoyance recently to Dr. Dix by writing letters, pleaded to-day "not guilty," and his trial was fixed for the 12th of April.

Hayes in New York.

NEW YORK, March 30.—President Hayes received in his hotel to-day quite a number of citizens and later lunched with John Taylor Johnson.

WASHINGTON.

The Army Appropriation Bill Agreed On in Committee.

The Wave of Scandal at Last Reaches the White House.

A Man Shot Dead—Notes From the National Capital.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 30.—The wave of scandal has at last reached the White House, and Charles Chapman has been dismissed by the President on the charge of using his position as one of the secretaries to delude and ruin young women applicants for department places. Chapman, it is said, has been in league with some Republican (Western) Congressman in the whole affair. He was formerly a clerk in the Treasury, but was taken into the White House by Grant and retained by Hayes. Various rumors have been afloat for several years to the same effect, but they have just taken an unmistakable shape.

THURMAN BETTER.

Thurman is better to-day.

PASSED THE HOUSE.

The House just passed the diplomatic and consular bill, despite the efforts of some Democrats to abolish foreign missions.

SHOT DEAD.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 30.—James Edward Johnson, colored, was shot dead last night by Joseph, alias "Big Foot" Johnson. The shooting took place in front of the store which George P. Hirth, recently murdered, occupied.

THE ARMY APPROPRIATION.

The House Committee on Appropriations to-day unanimously agreed upon the army appropriation bill for the year ending June, 1881. It appropriates an aggregate of $26,425,800 a reduction from the estimates of $1,201,675.

ON THE FREE LIST.

The House Committee on Ways and Means by a vote of eight to three decided to place upon the free list "all manufactured paper, wood pulp, jute butts, unmanufactured flax, straw and other fibre and fibrous plants fit for use for the manufacture of paper."

The committee also decided, seven to five, to fix the duty at forty per cent upon flannels, blankets, hats of wool, knit hoods, balmorals, woolens of every description composed wholly or in part of worsted, hair of alpaca, goat or other like animals except such as are composed in part of wool, not otherwise provided for.

REPUBLICAN CAUCUS.

The Republican members of the Senate held a caucus this morning for the purpose of determining the party's line of action in the Senate with regard to the clause inserted by the House in the immediate deficiency, by which it is proposed to amend the law concerning the appointment of Deputy Marshals for elections. The caucus unanimously decided that the clause should be opposed upon the ground that it is a rider, and that all attempts of the majority to force legislation by such means should be resisted now as they were resisted at the extra session.

THE DEFICIENCY APPROPRIATION.

The Senate took up the immediate deficiency appropriation bill and adopted an amendment reducing the appropriation for public printing from $400,000 to $300,000.

LEFT FOR OHIO.

Secretary Sherman leaves to-day for Ohio.

House.

Mr. Morton presented a memorial of the mercantile and banking houses of New York, praying that duties on sugar be assessed upon the quantity delivered from instead of upon the quality entered into bonded warehouses. Referred.

Mr. F. Wood gave notice that when the diplomatic and Indian appropriation bills have been disposed of he would call up the "funding bill."

The morning hour having been dispensed with, the House went into committee of the whole, Mr. Converse in the chair, on the consular and diplomatic appropriation bill.

Mr. Blackburn reported back the "star service" deficiency bill with Senate amendments, and it was referred to the committee of the whole. Mr. Blackburn stating that he would call the bill up to-morrow after the reading of the journal.

The contested election case of Bradley vs. Simmons, from the Second District of Arkansas, was then taken up.

The bill passed without amendment.

Mr. Clymer reported the army appropriation bill, and it was referred to the committee of the whole.

FLAMES.

A Man Burned to Death and Two Officers Fatally Injured.

NEW YORK, March 30.—A fire broke out this morning in the gallery of the police boat Seneca. All on board were asleep at the time. Steward Charles H. Berry was burned to death in his bunk, and Officers Patrick H. Kelly and Robert J. Vail were probably fatally burned. Others escaped serious injury.

Fire in Detroit.

DETROIT, March 30.—A fire at Port Austin, Mich., last night, destroyed the new salt block and saw mills of Thos. Winsor & Co. Loss $12,000; uninsured.

Stocks and Bonds.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, March 30.—The First National Bank has, it is said, marked all their demand loans up to seven per cent, being willing to incur the penalty which the law imposes on the National Banks—of the forfeiture of only the amount of interest above six per cent, which is now the legal rate. The action is severely criticised by the Stock Exchange borrowers, who can charge their customers only six per cent, and by private bankers, trust companies and other institutions which, as lenders of money, can take only six per cent without risk of forfeiting the principal and interest of the loan, provided any borrower chooses to carry the matter before the courts. An announcement that the Syndicate have sold the remainder of the New York Central stock would now cause no surprise on any day. Illinois Central stock is up in London to 110 on the report that dividends will be raised to eight per cent per annum.

AN ALMS-HOUSE HORROR.

The Brutal Murder of John Goehring at Allegheny City.

PITTSBURG, March 30.—Additional facts developed at the Coroner's investigation relative to the murder of John Goehring, an inmate of the Allegheny City Alms-house, are that on the morning of February 6, R. B. Crawford, in charge of the Insane Department, found an insane man named Wausman severely beating Goehring. Wausman was locked up, and Goehring ran into the dining-room. Crawford called Coolhoffs, a weak inmate, to assist him in taking Goehring back to the room. Goehring resisted, kicking Coolhoff in the stomach. Coolhoff, greatly angered, returned the kick,

KNOCKING HIM DOWN.

While Goehring was on the floor, held there by Coolhoff, the latter asserts that Crawford kicked Goehring on the head several times. Finally they succeeded in getting him as far as the bath-room, when he again became violent. Coolhoff then seized the roller on which towels were hung and struck Goehring on the head, knocking him insensible. He was then taken to his room, where he died at 12:30 p. m., Crawford and two inmates burying the body quietly next day. In the monthly statement to the Poor Board Goehring is reported as dying from mania a potu.

THE AFFAIR WAS KEPT QUIET,

finally leaking out through the medium of an inmate coming to the city, getting drunk and telling the story. Crawford and Coolhoff have been arrested on a charge of murder.

Declines All Interviews.

NEW YORK, March 30.—Ex-Treasurer Kemble of Pennsylvania, now in this city, to-day repeated his wish to decline all interviews in regard to his Pennsylvania troubles. He has denied the charge that his absence from Harrisburg is for the purpose of evading the execution of the court's sentence, and still maintains that his visit to this city is made purely in a business capacity in connection with pipe lines in which he is interested.

A reporter who called at the hotel in which Kemble and wife were stopping was told to-day they had left the hotel soon after breakfast. Kemble had gone down town, and would not return until four o'clock, and Mrs. Kemble had gone to do some shopping. There was no one in their rooms who represented them. It was said Kemble had not gone out of town, but further information as to his plans could not be obtained. It was rumored about the hotel, the Post says, the Kembles had gone from New York and also that they were making preparations to go to Canada.

The Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis Railway.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NASHVILLE, TENN., March 30.—The stockholders of the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis Railway met this afternoon, ratified the sale of the St. Louis and Southeastern and Owensboro and Nashville Roads, adopted resolutions complimentary to retiring President Cole and tendered himself and family a life pass over the road and connecting lines.

Bond Frauds in Cincinnati.

CINCINNATI, March 30.—The examination of the coupons of city bonds that have been redeemed develop the fact that additional duplications and even forgeries have been made. Some time ago it was discovered that eight bonds had been duplicated. Now as many as eighteen duplications have been discovered and several forged coupons as well as others upon which the numbers have been written in pencil. The subject is undergoing investigation by the Board of Revision.

An Express Agent Arrested for Robbery.

CHEYENNE, March 30.—C. K. Allen, late express agent, who had charge of the bullion recently stolen from the express office at Sidney, Neb., was arrested there last evening, charged with complicity in the robbery. The arrest was made through detectives under the direction of Superintendent Law, of the mountain division of the Union Pacific road.

Death of an Old Army Officer.

BALTIMORE, MD., March 30.—Col. John R. Emory died at Poplar Grove, Queen Ann's county, Md. The Colonel was brother of Maj.-Gen. Emory. He entered the regular army as second lieutenant and served in the Indian war in Florida and also in the West.

A New President Elected.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NASHVILLE, TENN., March 30.—The directors of the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis Railroad met this morning and accepted President Cole's resignation and elected J. W. Thomas President.

Suicided This Morning.

CLEVELAND, O., March 30.—Isaac Frank, well known in police circles ten years ago as a detective, suicided at Union Depot this morning by shooting himself through the temple. Motive unknown.

Dangerously Ill.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, March 30.—Gen. John Adair McDowell, superintendent of the new Customhouse, is seriously ill with inflammatory rheumatism, and is not expected to recover.

Dead in the Boat.

TORONTO, March 30.—Samuel Price and Edward Rainor, aged 14 and 15, while playing in a boat Sunday evening, drifted out into the lake. The boat containing their dead bodies was found near Niagara this morning.

Blown From the Roof and Killed.

NEW YORK, March 30.—Peter Smith and Patrick Cantwell, tin-smiths, were blown from the roof of the Seventh Regiment's armory to-day and killed.

Suicide of an Unknown.

CHICAGO, March 30.—An unknown man shot and killed himself on the North Pier this morning. The Coroner will hold an inquest this afternoon.

THE DAWN WILL COME.

The night may be dreary, and sombre and sad,
And swiftly may speed the wild rack in the sky;
The ocean may roar on the wave-beaten shore,
But the dawn of the bright golden morning is nigh!

The tempest may gather, and thunder may roll,
And the frighted birds hide from the lightning's sheen;
But far in the east, from its slumber released,
The dawn of the bright golden morning is seen!

The bitterest sorrow may gather around,
And banish the smile to give place to a tear;
But time will relieve all who tremble and grieve,
For the dawn of the sweet-smiling morning is near!

Then do not despair, O ye weary and sad,
For joy will disperse e'en the shade of a sigh;
Bright days will come back, and the night and the rack
Will flee when the dawn of the morning is nigh!

EDWARD OXENFORD.

AMONG THE CHEROKEES.

A Journalist's Adventures in Indian Territory.

[Frank Wilkie in Chicago Times.]

The nipping breeze of the morning subsided, the sun came out bright and warm, and the sky grew of a deep and tender blue. Overhead in every direction were countless flocks of wild geese, ducks and pigeons. In the belts of timber which we encountered at frequent intervals were gray and fox squirrels without number. Enormous hawks circled in the air above, and the music of song birds was heard from every clump of timber. It was a charming picture, lacking only the animation of human life to make it perfect. The roads—or rather the surface of the prarie, for roads would be a misnomer—grew harder, and we sped along rather merrily until nearly noon, when we halted at a farm-house for dinner. The place was some twenty-five miles from Vinita; and this farm was the second one we had met, or seen, in all that distance.

It was a comfortable house, built of squared logs, plastered between, and whitewashed. I counted seven children, from twelve years of age down, who were romping near the house, and soon after I met three more, two being infants, each of which was held by a half-breed mother. Whether any more were around under the beds, or out in the brush, I had no means of knowing. Who was the father I do not know, or how many there were of him. The head of the family did not put in an appearance. I was hungry as a wolf, and, therefore, made way with a meal which, under almost any other circumstances, I would have gone around several miles to avoid. It consisted of fat pork fried to a crisp and swimming in its own grease, coffee without either milk or sugar, corn "pones," and some flat pieces of dough fried in pork grease until it was the color and texture of sole-leather. That was several days ago. I do not think I have, as yet, quite digested all that I ate at that, my first meal among the Cherokees.

THE SCENE CHANGES.

The point where we took dinner was the southeastern limit of the prairie which we had been crossing from Vinita. The land within sight of the road along which we passed would support the entire Cherokee Nation; it is not occupied by a dozen of them. From the dinner place the timber grew denser and the hills and ravines more numerous and precipitous. Here and there were broad, level, grassy openings in the timber, and which varied in size from one or two to hundreds of acres. Protected by the surrounding timber and the encircling hills, and always in the vicinity of running water, they seem expressly designed for the beautiful and productive homes of people who can utilize their riches. A few miles brought us to a deep cut in a rise in front, and through this I caught sight of the deep, wide, clear waters of Grand River. How we ever got down thot narrow, tortuous cut I have no recollection. I have a dim belief that several times I saw Mr. Twilter up in the air directly over my head, and that on other occasions I seemed tossed up in the blue and saw beneath me Mr. Twilter as one sees an object who looks

DOWN FROM A BALLOON.

It took an hour to hunt up the ferryman—a gray old Cherokee, whose hair hung far down his shoulders. He had an assistant, a long-haired full-blood; and the two seemed to know as much about managing a boat as they would be likely to know of geometry. They poled us laboriously a long way up the stream, closely hugging the bank the while, nd then shoved out, trusting to the impetus and the current to carry us to the other shore. This happened after a time, but not until we ad drifted half a mile or more below the point where we left the further bank. Later n the day I saw two logs laid side by side across a stream, for the passage of children t a school-house in the vicinity. So far as I ave seen, this is the only highway improvement in the Cherokee Nation. Roads are not uilt, or repaired after they have become established. Narrow trails, which are met at ntervals, and leading from one belt of timber o another, and sufficiently wide for the passge of a horse, answer all the purposes of ighways which are required by the native, or ull-blood Cherokee.

After leaving Grand River the road passed hrough a most rough and broken region of ills, which are covered with timber, and whose surfaces are so overlaid with broken mestone and flinty fragments that they are nvisible. The road is the most execrable in xistence. No attempt is made to go around nything; it leads straight up the face of a ill, and squarely down into the next ravine. ut even this forbidding region is not withut its attractions. Every mile or two the oad encounters a stream as pure as the purest rystal, and on each side of which extends a ottom of unequaled richness and of sufficient imensions for farms of from one hundred to ve hundred acres. On both sides of Grand iver there is a bottom which often widens ut to miles, and which is as rich as the soil long the Mohawk valley. Not one acre in a ousand of these bottoms has ever been disrbed by man. They are now as they have een for all time, and as they will be so long s the present condition of the Territory reains undisturbed. There never was a couny so abundantly watered with streams of ich strength and exquisite purity. The timer, too, is equally noticeable for its abundce, variety and value. There are stalwart ms, massive and lofty oaks, black walnuts, camores, locusts and hickories without [illegible] The flint hill region shows everywhere outcropping of limestone ledges of a fine xture and a rich, brown color, which would ake the finest building stone in the world. I etected innumerable evidences of the existce of petroleum, both in the color of the cks, the formation of the country, and on e greasy surfaces of some of the springs. In e, here are illimitable riches which are as eless, just now, as if they were in Central rica.

GETTING SOCIABLE.

A few miles from Grand River we came on an open space of a few hundred acres, hose surface looked like a bed of snow. ear the hills a group of native Indians, male d female, with long hair, slouch hats, with me bright-colored ribbon, and a few halfrved ponies, were engaged in superintendg a fire under a big kettle. I inquired of . Twilter as to the meaning of the scene bee us.

"Salt springs," was the answer.

The swarthy natives scarcely looked up as passed. Those who faced us gazed for a oment under their lowering eyebrows; the hers never even turned their heads to exine the strangers.

had noticed that Mr. Twilter always adssed each horse as "Mollie." More to n a conversation than for any other pure, I finally said:

"I see you call that gentleman as well as lady pony by the name of 'Mollie.' That es me to think you must have a sweetheart that name."

Mr. Twilter smiled sheepishly—his comxion debarred him from blushing—and afthinking it over awhile said:

"I allus calls a favorite hoss Mollie."

This seemed to thaw him out, for a little later, as a gaunt hog, with legs like a deer and a snout long and sharp enough to bore an artesian well, stalked across the trail, he ventured to remark that "that hogue could outrun any deerhound in the Territory."

Encouraged by this, his first voluntary remark, I attempted to draw him out.

"See here, William, you are a likely young fellow, and the thing for you to do is to take a wife among the Cherokees and settle down."

"It would be a good scheme, only t'ain't so easy done. These full-bloods hates a white man, and won't let their daughters marry 'em. I don't want no half-breed, becos they're uglier'n h—l, and then you ain't got no sure thing on what they're up to when you ain't around to watch 'em. An' then, ef you shud marry one of them half-breeds, the fust time there was a row, she'd up and twit you that you jest married her to git a right to live in the nation. Git ep, Mollie!" and he laid the lash over the masculine Mollie's back as if it had been that of the half-breed spouse whom he had in his mind's eye. It is the case that among none of the tribes—that is, the civilized ones—can a white man work any land on his own account. He may work it for a native—and all the land among the Cherokees which is worked at all is thus worked—and then the Cherokee Government collects a fee of $1 a month from his employer. To work any land on his own account or to do business on his own account among the civilized tribes he must be a citizen, and to be qualified to be a citizen he must have at least one-sixteenth Indian blood in his veins, or else he must marry a woman who has the native blood. As is generally known, no individual can own any land; it all belongs to the Indian Government. A man may work as much as he chooses to fence in, but in no case does he acquire a right to anything but the improvements. If he wishes to move he can sell his cabin and fences, or he can take them down and move them to some other point.

Here is a phase of communism pure and simple. How it operates will be shown in the course of this correspondence.

FLYING TO THE NORTH POLE.

A New Machine Invented by Mr. Ritchell, of Bridgeport, Conn.

[From the New York Tribune.]

An inventive Yankee, Mr. Ritchell, of Bridgeport, Conn., has conceived the idea of attempting to reach the North Pole by means of a flying machine. He has opened an office at No. 92 Chambers street, in this city, with a view of bringing his project directly before the public. A full-rigged "machine," painted in gay colors and lacking nothing but the inflation of its balloon portion to make it complete, rested in the Professor's office yesterday. As explained by the inventor to a Tribune reporter, the invention lies in a combination of forces—a balloon and a frame-work machine to aid in steering. The lifting power is afforded by a cylinder made of Scotch gingham, coated with India rubber, and capable of being inflated with 1,250 cubic feet of hydrogen gas. A rod of mandrel-drawn brass tubing is fitted along the under side of the balloon and is fastened to it by worsted bands. From this rod the machine is suspended by slender cords. The after portion of the framework is the base of a parallelogram of rods from which rise, lengthwise, curved rods eighteen inches high in the center and drawn together at the top. A single seat for the conductor is placed in the center. His feet press against treadles, by which he is supposed to steer. There is a pair of handles, or levers, by means of which he regulates a three-bladed fan moving horizontally beneath the seat. This screw-like fan, "when revolving 2,000 times a minute," as the Professor explained, "would give an essential movement of great power. A similar contrivance placed vertically at the extremity of the machine will be called upon to make 2,800 revolutions a minute, and to thus furnish the driving power that must be used when air currents fail.

"Do you really think of starting for the North Pole on your machine?" the reporter inquired of the inventor.

"I certainly do. All I want is the backing of scientific men and capitalists in this city—sufficient to equip a large flying machine and take me to the northern limit of navigation, and I will cheerfully start. Ha, ha," enthusiastically, "I think the great problem of the age may now be solved."

"Will your machine stand rough weather?"

"No; but then you see, there is little or no rough weather in the extreme north. It is silently, intensely cold there. The main difficulty to overcome was that of locomotion, and I have overcome that. My balloon reduces the actual work of the conductor to a mere trifle. There is absolutely no danger. Wind or no wind, the thing can go. I'll bet $1,000 that I can travel five miles on exhibition without carrying ballast or letting out gas. Publish that challenge to the world, and say that my machine has demonstrated the successful navigation of the air at any altitude yet attained by aerial ships."

"What would you do in case of a storm?"

"Get out of it, either by going up or down. Meteorologists have ascertained that the various layers or strata, so to speak, of the atmosphere are virtually so many different currents. You can nearly always strike the current you want. Should this be impossible, the mechanical motive power comes in handy. I can travel in wind of less velocity than six miles an hour with perfect safety; greater than that is a storm, you know, and must be treated accordingly."

"How low do you anticipate it will take you to reach the polar extremity of the earth?"

"About ten days; or 500 miles travel, from the point of disembarking. But I can alight at any convenient time and place. Provisions and clothing can be easily carried on the body of the machine. If the balloon be destroyed or exhausted in any way I am a lost man, but that is only one contingency; the risk is less than to any other Arctic voyager."

Mr. Ritchell will exhibit his apparatus within two weeks to a party of scietific men and citizens of this city.

GARMENTS OF MYSTERY.

A Lady's Description of the Chemiloon—An Interesting Window.

[New York Cor. Cin. Enquirer.]

There is a show window on one of the avenues full of reform undergarments of mysterious shapes. Various ideas in corsets are realized, and suspenders for skirts and stockings are numerously displayed, but the general tendency of the reforms there illustrated is toward combining two articles in one. An undershirt and a corset cover become a single garment, and so do a nightgown and a nightcap. The most striking thing in the window is of white muslin, and has both arms and legs. It is, to speak without equivocation, a chemise as far down as the waist, and drawers below that dividing line. The utility of it is not very apparent, though the dealer declares that it saves time and trouble, and is more comfortable. It certainly is rather a startling object, as it hangs at full length and breadth in the window; yet I imagine that it is mysterious to most of the men who throw sly glances at it as they pass by. Why women's un derwear should be a delicate subject is to me, a woman, most wonderful; but so it is. Even the two girls who were looking at some reform goods as I entered the store seemed desirous of escaping. But there was a strong-mannered woman there who did not shrink; and I observed that she bought several of the curious combinations, while the comely girls went out without making any purchase. I talked with the old one for the sake of finding out her motive for decreasing the number and increasing the comprehensiveness of her undergarments, and was astonished when I heard it.

"Tisn't so much that they're handier to get on and off," she said, "though that's something; but the fact is my washerwoman charges by the dozen. A shirt is one piece and a pair of drawers is another, which makes two; but shirt and drawers in one count but one. These washerwomen, bless you, are so grasping."

The garment to which she referred is called a chemiloon. I looked carelessly at the various styles, for I had no intention of buying any, and the salesgirl grew persuasive.

"You can hardly appreciate how becoming they are," she said, in reply to my remark as to their appearance, "unless you see them worn. Please step this way and see a model."

She conducted me into a rear apartment—a sort of dressing room for the trying on of garments—and called out, "Lizzie! Lizzie!" In response a handsome young woman came in. Removing a loose wrapper, she unconcernedly displayed several of the establishment's devices.

"The lady wishes to see the chemiloon," the salesgirl said.

The young woman doffed her skirts of novel shapes and stood revealed in the chemiloon. There was plenty of simplicity and nothing very interesting about the garment. Bathing dresses for children are sometimes cut in about the same fashion. Any ordinarily ingenious lady could make it without a pattern. The model was well-nigh faultless in figure, and so, of course, looked well in it. The cloth was fine bleached muslin; the neck was moderately low and edged with dainty lace; the sleeves were short, showing the wearer's shapely arms nearly to the shoulder; the waist was half-fitting, and there was an inset bosom of embroidery; the legs reached to just below the knees. In putting on the chemiloon the legs are drawn on first, trousers-like; then the arms are thrust through, and finally the garment fastened by its row of buttons behind.

A NIHILIST PRISON.

Cruel Treatment of Prisoners—Cell Where a Princess Died.

[Paris Cor. London Telegraph.]

A short account of the celebrated casemates of the Fortress of St. Peter and St. Paul, in which the Nihilists are confined immediately after their arrest, will, I doubt not, be perused with interest by your readers. The writer, a St. Petersburg correspondent, obtained access to the casemates by a special order from one of the Grand Dukes. The casemates are hollowed out under the Neva, and directly under the ramparts. Their only window, a little square hole protected by a thick barred grating, rises but a few inches above the level of the river. At stated distances there are iron doors opening into halls filled with sentinels, who, with loaded rifle and fixed bayonet, keep watch and ward over the unhappy tenants of the cells which open upon them. As for the tiny prisons, they are very narrow quarters, square, with stone walls and floors, and fearfully damp, the water constantly dropping about in all directions. A chair, a table and a pallet of white wood form the only furniture. One of the pallets was found to be covered with a bed of straw horribly foul, but even this, poor luxury as it was, must be considered an exception. The visitor was allowed entrance to a few of the cells. Their tenants were pale; they rose as he entered, according to order, but regarded him with a fixed look of despair. The writer was shown the famous cell in which was incarcerated the Princess Tarakanova, daughter of the Empress Elizabeth, who fell a victim to her rival, the Empress Catherine II., grandmother of the present Czar. This unhappy woman perished in the cell under the most dramatic circumstances. The Neva, swollen by the melted snow, suddenly rose, and the rushing torrent, dashing with overwhelming strength against the tiny window, broke in and filled the cell with water. The Princess was drowned. The cells of the great state criminals are lined with mattresses, and rings of iron are placed in the walls, to which many of them are bound when they are not strait-waistcoated. The guide informed the writer, among other things, that these unhappy men were asked every quarter of an hour if they were present. Whenever they failed to reply they were barbarously punished. He also states that in the wall of the Emperor's room is an invisible door, communicating with a little passage, very narrow, and leading to a subterranean gallery, hollowed out under the Neva. The gallery leads to the fortress, and, in case of a revolution or of imminent peril, the Czar could disappear in a few seconds from the Winter Palace, and a few minutes after find himself in perfect safety in the Fortress of St. Peter and St. Paul, the guns of which, in a short time, could reduce St. Petersburg to ruins. The palace of the Czar Paul I., which is now the Engineers' School, was similarly provided; but when the assassins entered his room he had not time to flee, and was struck down at the very moment when he was about to disappear behind the secret door, which was already open.

Those Sherman Diamonds.

[From the Washington Star.]

One of the many stories current about Mrs. Minnie Fitch Sherman's diamonds sent her as a wedding gift by the Khedive, sets forth that the jewels were once sent back by Gen. Sherman to their donor. This, Gen. Sherman says, is incorrect. From the time the necklace was released from the New York Custom-house until October, 1878, it was in the United States Treasury here, subject to his order. At the time mentioned he took the necklace to New York to be made into four sets, one for each of his daughters. The young ladies, in the order of their seniority, chose the designs for the remounting of the jewels. All the original diamonds and as much as possible of the gold setting was used in the new arrangement, and also some additional gold. The remodeling and the material needed cost a little over $500. Mrs. Fitch now has her set, which is somewhat the handsomest of the four, with her in St. Louis. When Miss Ellie Sherman marries, as she probably will this spring, her diamonds will be given her, and the two other girls will have theirs whenever they desire them.

John Morrissey's Estate.

[From the New York World, 28.]

A petition was filed a few days ago in the Surrogate's Court in Saratoga county in a proceeding to remove Edwin Murphy and William R. Travers, executors of the estate of the late Senator Morrissey. The proceeding is returnable before the Surrogate in Saratoga county on the 2d of next month. The petitioners are John R. Caswell and Wm. M. Massey of the firm of Caswell & Massey, Edward Bradley, Robert M. Taylor and Union Adams, all of this city, who declare that they are creditors of Morrissey's estate, that to Caswell & Massey are due $278 50 for goods and merchandise, that Edward Bradley is owed $1,852 for services as a physician and that money is also owed to Robert M. Taylor and Union Adams for goods sold and delivered. The petition declares that the executors did not file an inventory of Morrissey's estate until the 28th of October, 1879; that this inventory did not include Morrissey's salary of $1,500 as a Senator, and that the petitioners are informed that among the assets was a claim against James O'Brien, of this city, for about four or five thousand dollars, of which no mention was made in the inventory; that O'Brien did business with a firm with which Mr. Travers is connected and that O'Brien had large sums of money deposited in that firm. It further states that Edwin Murphy was an executor only in name and that the entire management of the estate was conducted by Mr. Travers. The petition sets up the fear that false claims or claims for gambling debts might be paid by the executors and represents that Mr. Travers is believed to be so occupied in business as to be unable to devote proper attention to the duties of an executor, and that he is indifferent in the discharge of his duties, and on all these averments the petitioners ask that these executors be removed. The petitioners are represented by John McCrone, a lawyer of this city, and the papers have been served on Messrs. Travers and Murphy.

The Latest in Easter Hosiery.

[From the New York Herald.]

Stockings are now made in all the colors and combinations of color that enter into other fabrics. The open work or cable cord thread hose are the newest. These come in solid colors of ecru, old gold, garnet, sapphire blue, cardinal and black. French thread hose are open-worked in fanciful designs on the instep, as are the fine silk hose intended to be worn with the low-cut shoes and fancy slippers now considered so essential a part of every lady's toilet. Spun silk hose are quite a luxury, durable, comfortable and moderate in price, and they rival the double thread hose, once so much in favor. Walking boots are all cut high and those made of French kid foxings with fine satinlaine uppers, constitute the choice walking boot of the season. As the warm weather advances low cut shoes promise to replace the high boot to a great extent, yet it can never be considered so thoroughly ladylike for the promenade. House slippers are cut very low in front, and have a right and left bow; that is the loops and cut steel ornaments are different for each side of the slipper, while the bow in the middle may be of a third arrangement still. The loops may be of black velvet or of any shade of ribbon matching either the hose or some portion of the toilet.

Silk kerchiefs, bordered with lace inserting, a band of silk jardiniere embroidery, another band of lace inserting and a border of lace, are the latest fancy for the neck. Beaded fichus of nearly the same shape as those old-time crocheted shoulder afghans worn by ladies in the house and under their wraps are among the imported Parisian novelties for street costumes.

Fine line stripes, pinhead check, small broken plaids and solid-looking cloths have a blending of all the colors of the rainbow introduced so deftly as to defy detection at a distance, and are used for gentlemen's clothing. Coats are cut quite high on the breast and cut away very much below the waist. Trousers are straight and a shade narrower than formerly. Neckties are of plain colored satin, with a stripe of Oriental satin at the side or a hand embroidery of self color on the ends and colors in the loop of the tie representing jockey caps, whips, horseshoes, etc. Sleeve buttons have a spring to save the buttonholes of the cuffs, and a pair in colored ivory represents the one a male and the other a female monkey head, or a Chinese man or woman, Bank of England or mille franc notes enameled in fac-simile of the original.

Andrew Jackson Wang.

[From the New York Herald, 28th.]

An anonymous baby that came into the world a few days ago was the cause of a domestic contest which yesterday was brought to the Yorkville Police Court for adjustment. The infant is a funny phenomenon in whose veins the passive blood of the Mongolian is commingled with the sanguine current of the Celt. Its father came from the banks of the Yang-tse-Kiang, its mother from those of the Shannon. Ah Lin Wang is the former's name, and he owns a laundry on First avenue, where the mother, after presenting him with the immature heir, announced her determination to have it called Dennis after her brother. To Ah Lin Wang the name had an obnoxious flavor of the sand lots, and he insisted on one more attuned to Celestial taste. Then there was a quarrel over it, in which a flat-iron figured conspicuously and disastrously to the lady, who had Ah Lin Wang arraigned for assault. The magistrate tried to reconcile the jarring parents.

"Dennis is a good name," he said, "but so also is Ah Lin Wang."

"Yes," blurted out the mother, "and so is Belzebub and Judas Iscariot and Oliver Cromwill, but divil an owrangowtang or a Ho Hi Ho will my child be called."

"Will callee Jolge Wallington," quoth the father in a patriotic vein by way of compromise. "Him vallee good name. But Dennis! No. Him dam bad, allee same like Milican man."

"Say we compromise this," said his Honor at last. "Concede something to your Irish wife. Andrew Jackson was of good Irish and American stock. Call him that."

"Belly good," assented the Mongol.

"That'll do," said the Celt, and so the anonymous baby is likely to become Andrew Jackson Wang.

A Waif From the Tay Bridge Wreck.

[From the London Telegraph.]

A strange but not altogether improbable story comes from Norway, where it saw the light in the columns of the Morgenblad, a well-known local newspaper. On the 12th of last month, as some fishermen were hauling their nets in one of the fiords on the western coast, apparently not far from Bergen, they sighted an "extraordinary object" some distance further out. Fancying at first that it was a new monster, they retired to a safe distance. Finally, however, curiosity got the better of them; they cautiously approached the bobbing mystery, but only to discover that it was a railway carriage, in a sadly smashed and dismantled condition, with the following letters painted on it: "Edinburgh and Glasgow Railway." From the fact that there was a portmanteau inside containing clothes marked "P. B.," it is supposed to have been one of the relics of the Tay bridge disaster, separated from the other carriages by the wrench to which the whole train was subjected, and then floated out to sea with the ebbing tide. That the waif may have drifted in a northeasterly direction toward the nearest point of the Norwegian coast is as little surprising as the circumstance that in midwinter no vessel happened to see it en route. If one wagon was so completely severed from the others, we may now understand how it is that the wreck of the train has yielded such comparatively few memorials. The North Sea, and not the Frith of Tay, has been the cemetery of the victims.

AN engineer on the Lehigh Valley Road broke the valve of his steam-pipe on Monday, and to save his life couldn't stop the shrill screaming that followed. The prolonged whistling caused much commotion among people living along the line of the road, and many ran from their homes to ascertain what was the matter. The engineer pointed to the whistle, which the fireman was vainly endeavoring to fix, but his gestures were not understood. Stationmen, flagmen, trackmen and others had an idea that the engineer was crazy, and began to predict all sorts of disasters. The engine was run to Sugar Notch and housed, and there the fire was drawn. All this time, and until the steam was exhausted, that insatiable whistle tooted away like mad. It was a funny sort of an accident, and created quite an excitement.

Bands of colored embroideries, in silk on jaconet, in bright pinks and blue flowers alternating, form the insertion between the lace flounces of new petticoats. The effect is very gay and tasteful. Other lingerie is ornamented to match.

WITHOUT AMBITION.

With little bark and lowly sail,
I hug the shore and shun the gale.
Let others dare the storm-swept sea;
The sheltered, peaceful bay for me.

My little craft I hand and steer,
And veer about without a fear.
To more adventurous hearts I leave
To fare forth where the billows heave.

And, tiny though my shallop be,
It is a ship and on a sea;
And something of the joy I share
Of those who farther seaward dare.

HENRY LOWNDES.

MEN OF WEXFORD.

How Agitator Parnell Was Mobbed at Enniscarthy.

[Cable Dispatch to New York Herald.]

Mr. Parnell since his return has carried things with a high hand, and has almost assumed a dictatorship as regards political affairs, but he met with a significant check at a meeting held here to-day for the purpose of selecting candidates for the Parliamentary representation of Wexford. Mr. Parnell and two of the three candidates, Messrs. Byrne and John Barry, traveled from London by the 9 o'clock train. At Arklow, and several other railway stations, large crowds assembled on the platforms to see Mr. Parnell, and loudly cheered him. At Ferns, however, the enthusiasm was by no means so great as before, and many of the people shouted for Chevalier O'Cleary, who is the third candidate. When the train arrived at Enniscarthy it was received by an extremely large throng. Parnell and his friends were cheered, but the reception was lukewarm in comparison with that which was accorded to the Rev. Joseph Murphy, of Ferns, who from that town traveled down in the same train. It was arranged that the meeting should be held at 2 o'clock, but the point of vantage was at once occupied by the Chevalier O'Cleary and six priests and round them rallied the Chevalier's supporters in large numbers. Mr. Parnell's party had decided that the Rev. Mr. Kenny should preside, but the meeting selected Rev. O'Gorman, who was, however, assailed by a man named Murphy; a scuffle ensued, and the priest flung his assailants off the platform.

At this moment Messrs. Parnell and Barry were seen advancing at the head of a large crowd, with a band playing and green banners flying. They marched down the sloping ground towards the platform. The assembly numbered not less than 15,000 men. The platform was densely crowded. Amid a great scene of disorder, Mr. Parnell struggled to the front of the stand. His appearance was a signal for the uproar to commence. The confusion lasted for several minutes; yells, groans, cheers and cries filled the air. Rotten eggs were thrown at the agitator, and one of them struck him on the beard. For a moment Mr. Parnell appeared to be on the point of addressing the people, but if he had formed this design he immediately gave it up. Silence having been in a measure restored, the Chairman, waving his stick over his head, said: "Men of Wexford, listen to me. We come here to-day to select a representative for our connty. We will hear Mr. Parnell, but we will not allow him to be our dictator." A violent uproar here occurred. The crowd surged toward the platform, shouting. Several yelled, "Put Parnell down; put Parnell down." A rush was made at him by some men on the stand. They seized him, crying out, "Parnell will go down to hell," and endeavored to drag him down to the ground. He clung to the front of the railing. Father Murphy and several other priests put their arms around him, and endeavored to protect him from the violence of his assailants, who continued to rush forward. It seemed probable that he would in another moment be thrown off the platform. The crowd below, hooting and shouting, caught him by the legs, endeavoring to drag him down. In the struggle his hat was battered and his trowsers split up to the knee. He was only saved from another blow by a stick being suddenly seized from behind by the gentleman representing Newport. At this stage in the proceedings the police, armed with rifles, advanced through the people and took up a position near the platform. There was a lull in the noise. Mr. Parnell was again about to speak, when he was interrupted by a voice calling out, "Take off your hat." A rush was made at him by the people, who again tried to drag him off. He succeeded, however, with the assistance of the priests, in resisting the attack. He tried to address the people, but his remarks were inaudible amid the uproar and shouts of "Down with the dictatorship!" "We did not invite you to go down!" Several of the priests appeared as if urging Parnell to retire, but he continued to speak despite the noise. Three cheers were called for Messrs. Barry and O'Cleary. The latter was warmly and loudly cheered. He asked the people to hear Parnell. To this there were cries of "No! no!" and a renewal of the riot. Parnell again attempted to speak. He was interrupted by cries of "You went to America to beg for Ireland, but not for Wexford." "Go mend your trousers." At this the tempest once more broke loose. The Chairman asked for silence. He was totally unable to obtain it. Amid much confusion Parnell retired. After he had left, several speeches were made, the substance of which was that the people would not tolerate dictation in the selection of a candidate. The result was that Mr. Byrne, Parnell's pet candidate, was rejected. On the way to the station the crowd hooted Mr. Parnell, and the constabulary had to guard the gates of the station, which were closed, to keep out the hostile and threatening mob.

Those Gorgeous Americans in Paris.

[From the Parisian.]

A fascinating toilet was worn by Mme. Mitford at Mme. A. J.'s. The waist, which was made of black sicilienne, was closed on one side by an exquisite embroidery about seven inches wide, representing green leaves and roses of different colors. This was continued around the short draperies of the waist; a sort of short tunic, made of black plaited sicilienne, terminating bias, fell over a black satin skirt, trimmed with a wide embroidery—about fifty-five inches wide. This embroidery, which was a veritable wonder of its kind, was similar to that on the waist, only made of much larger flowers. The waist was finished with a small standing collar entirely composed of embroidered green leaves and roses. Her hair was dressed very short on the back of her head, displaying a charming neck. The chignon was narrow, and very flat bandeaux perfectly outlined the form of her head.

Mme. Mitford, as well as Mme. Gauthreau, is one of the beauties in Parisian society about whom every one is talking. This charming American lives in a handsomely furnished hotel in the Rue Pierre-Charron. She also possesses magnificent diamonds, which many women envy.

Mme. Mitford is, as is well known, the granddaughter of Commodore Vanderbilt, one of the greatest of American railroad managers, who left several millions of dowry to each one of his children. Mme. Mitford's uncle possesses something like fifty millions.

Last Saturday, at Patti's representation, I remarked Mrs. Mackay in one of the stage boxes, dressed in pale blue, the waist and tablier of her dress embroidered with ruby and old gold beads. A row of heliotropes was placed across the front of the waist.

Bursting a Boarding-House.

[From the New York Tribune, 28th.]

Miss Sarah H. Leggett keeps a boarding-house at No. 60 Clinton place, which is known as "Miss Leggett's Boarding-house for Business Women." Many persons have interested themselves in her plans and have done much to encourage and aid Miss Leggett in her work. The house has accommodations for about forty young women, most of whom are art students whose homes are in the West and other portions of the country, and who have come to this city to study their profession. The young women have been pleased with the accommodations afforded them by Miss Leggett, but they say they have never been satisfied with the food provided for them.

They recently talked much among themselves about the quality of the food, and finally determined to draw up a petition asking Miss Leggett to furnish more palatable and nourishing articles to eat. In the petition they stated that for breakfast on Friday of last week they were served with a stew "apparently of liver and bacon," which, from the condition of the meat, we could not and did not eat; for dinner we were served with soup, which we inferred was made of the same, and which also we were unable to eat. On that evening a number of us left the dining-room and went to a restaurant for our dinner, as we had done on several occasions before." The women also claimed that the vegetables were not such as were calculated to maintain health at this season of the year, and that among the meats furnished there was not enough beef. They then asked Miss Leggett in pleasant language to correct these faults. On Wednesday the young women received a reply from Miss Leggett, in which she said that she was amazed at the impertinence and ingratitude shown in the letter. She informed them that she would not make the slightest change in the management of any department, and she was obliged to add that to insure the future harmony of the house, she would have to request each one who signed the petition to look for accommodations elsewhere. She said she wished each one of them abundant happiness and success, but her decision was final. Accordingly twenty-five women left the house in a body yesterday, and are now temporarily lodged in a number of houses in the neighborhood. They say that Miss Leggett's action was due to her hasty temper, and complain about the way she has treated them. They are all scattered, and their plans for the future are in a chaotic state.

A SPOOK STORY.

Pretty Mary Mulhaney and Her False Lover.

[Coshocton, O., Letter.]

Saturday night an episode occured reviving in the memory of our oldest inhabitants a mournful tragedy of many years ago. In the autumn of 1851, while the Pan-handle Railroad was being built, there was, about one-half mile east of our town, near where the Beech Hollows mines are now situated, a cluster of boarding shanties, in which the laborers took their meals on the first floor, and at night climbed into the loft and spread themselves promiscuously upon the floor and slept and swore until morning. In one of these boarding shanties lived a buxom, handsome girl named Mary Mulhaney, upon whom all the brawny laborers smiled sweetly, but Mary reserved her affections for a particular person, and in the course of time it became apparent that the sweet Mary Mulhaney, as she was familiarly termed, had "loved not wisely but too well," and her friends began to jeer her. And when the destroyer of her happiness fled and left her alone in her misery, Mary's heart came near breaking, and she could not stand the gibes and jeers of her associates, and one fine morning in the delightful October of 1851, when all nature seemed smiling, the handsome form of Mary Mulhaney was found hanging to the limb of a giant oak near the shanty. She was buried, and in time forgotten.

Nine years later a party of Nimrods from our town were in that neighborhood hunting, and among the number was the betrayer of sweet Mary Mulhaney. While standing beneath the very tree to which she had hanged herself his gun was accidentally discharged, and he was instantly killed. A terrible and just retribution to the destroyer of the sweet young life of the handsome Irish lass. For some time after that it was claimed by parties who passed by the scene of the tragedies after night, that the ghost of the two parties, accompanied by a big, black dog that accompanied the deceased Nimrod on his hunting expeditions, appeared. In time, too, that was forgotten, but Saturday night it was all brought to memory again in startling form. As a young man employed at the mines made his way homeward at a late hour, and nearing the spot where the tragedies occurred, he was suddenly startled at the appearance of the ghosts—the man dressed in a solemn, somber, black, and the woman in ghost-like white, while the veritable black dog seen years before ran ahead of them. As they passed the woman gave forth doleful and heart-rending appeals to her destroyer, while he replied in deep and guttural curses. The young man took to his heels, and nothing since can induce him to leave his room. The miners employed at the mines are greatly excited, and many of the more superstitious are threatening to leave the dwellings which they occupy, so great are their fears. There is quite a little village at the mines, but after night there is not a person to be seen outside the walls of the houses.

The excitement in town is great, and there is talk of organizing a company to-night and watching for the spiritual visitors.

First Romance of the New Spring.

[From the Macon (Ga.) Telegraph.]

It is moonlight on the hill. From out of the trees a gentle zephyr creeps to rob the hyacinth of its perfumed breath, and adown the garden walk the whippoorwill lends his monotone of sadness unto the balmy night. Sleep, with brooding wings, sits silent o'er the scene. But hark! it is the tinkling guitar strummed by the lonely Augusta. He comes. Beneath the vine-clad window in the ghostly gloaming he pauses, and up the flower-trellised wall he shoots a melancholy tenor fraught with the passionate inquiry, "Must I leave thee here alone?" No answer returns save the haunting echo and the low clicking of a distant door. The scene changes.

It is the back yard tableau. A white-robed old man bends above a chained dog and soothes his too eager spirit as he loosens the collar. A low voice says, "S-cc-eeck him, Bull—take a short cut around the rose-bush." A flash and the old man is alone. The clatter of a fallen guitar comes from the front; a sound like the rush of a steeple-chase nearing a hedge is borne back, and neck and neck two figures cross the picket fence to disappear down the dim perspective of the deserted street. Then the old man meets Bull as he returns on the outer walk, and removes in a discouraged manner a dark object from his foaming mouth, while the animal retires to his kennel in silence. The door opens and shuts upon the white-robed form, and all is still again. But as he gets in bed and shoves the old lady's feet out of the warm place, he mutters, "Bull's gettin' old, an' serenades don't pay dividends like they used to, but if the business keeps up, I think you will be justified in startin' another patch-work quilt, Mariar. That last fellow left real cassumer."

"What sorter sample did you get?"

"Tolerble fair. There was a long strip with a pistol-pocket hangin' to it, and one gallus' butt'n."

Falkenberg's Vigil.

[From the New York Sun, 28th.]

The steamship Belgenland lay puffing great clouds of white smoke from her rakishly set chimney at 3 o'clock yesterday at her berth in Jersey City. Passengers crowded the forward gangway and the gangway amidships, and the crew, in shining tarpaulins, hustled great packages of freight and a variety of baggage up the after gangway. The passengers, with one exception, were surrounded by friends. Christian Falkenberg, a dark, black-bearded, spectacled young man, with the air of a student, stood apart at the shore end of the gang-plank amidships. He was dressed with evident care, and he had a red geranium flower and its leaf on the lapel of his under coat. Occasionally he spoke to a strongly-built, light-bearded man who stood near him, and was evidently a friend. Mr. Falkenberg was plainly expecting some one. He looked anxiously up the pier, and peered eagerly in every coach that brought passengers for the Belgenland. Occasionally he walked to the upper pier and looked up and down the street.

For whom Mr. Falkenberg waited is shown by an advertisement that was inserted among the personal notices in a morning newspaper calling upon the young wife, of whom he recently lost sight, to avail herself of the last chance to rejoin him before he quitted the shores of the United States, perhaps forever. In his advertisement Mr. Falkenberg gave his wife notice that he would await her coming on the pier at 3 o'clock, and until the last moment before the Belgenland sailed. But, apparently, he waited in vain, for he stood alone when the Belgenland glided out in the turbid, rain-beaten river.

AMUSEMENTS.

Alice Oates again appeared in "Le Petit Duc" last evening. Wednesday and Thursday "The Pretty Perfumer."

There was another large house at the Theatre Comique last night. Mlle. Zoe and the other new artists were liberally applauded. The old artists all appear in new and interesting specialties.

Pope's Theater was packed at the matinee and evening performances yesterday by large audiences to witness the popular drama of "Uncle Tom's Cabin." It was received with boisterous demonstrations of applause. There will be a matinee every day. Popular prices.

Robson and Crane last night introduced their new comedy of "Sharps and Flats" to the St. Louis public. There was a large audience, and the house was kept in one continuous roar. "Sharps and Flats" is a pronounced success, and Robson and Crane may be congratulated upon having secured a really laughable and enjoyable play.

Legion of Honor Entertainment.

The audience drawn last night to the entertainment at Pickwick Hall, given by Council No. 6, Legion of Honor, was not measured by the capacity of the hall, for it overflowed to the sidewalk before the performance began. The programme was a very well selected one, although some changes were made, owing to the refusal of Miss Ada Branson to sing her number. Miss Cora Carpenter was substituted, her selection being the well-known "Ernani, fly with me!" from the opera of that name. The programme opened with a duett for tenor and baritone by Messrs. Colville and Ridgeley, "When Shadows Deepen." Mr. Charles Pope followed with selected readings, and was succeeded by Mr. Edward Cooper in a tenor solo. The recitation by Mrs. J. R. Scott failed to do that accomplished lady full justice, a severe cold being pleaded by herself. However, "What Hezekiah Said to Me" brought down the house and won a hearty encore. The alto solo, "We Meet Above," by Miss Ada Clegg, served to strengthen the number of that charming vocalist's admirers; there is an honesty of labor about this painstaking young lady that never fails to mark the artiste. Dr. Snyder read Mark Twain's first interview with Artemus Ward. Mr. Colville rendered the "Yeoman's Wedding Song;" Mr. Ridgeley sang a tenor solo; Miss Carpenter and Messrs. Colville and Cooper gave the trio from "The Bohemian Girl," while Mr. Charlie Slayback, to quote the lamented Sut Lovengood, kept "sloshin' round" in a decidedly humorous way that ensures his success whenever he shall decide to take to the stage.

If mention of Miss Helen Mar White is left until the last it is not because of the inferiority of her performance. Appearing as a stranger to almost the entire audience, she was the star of the evening before she had uttered a dozen words, and so delighted were her hearers that not until following a response to the third encore did the evident weariness of the gifted young lady moderate the enthusiasm. Miss White possesses a good figure, pleasing manners and presence, wonderfully mobile features, excellent pronunciation, and a voice whose rich, vibrant tones stamp the owner as a gifted work of nature of unusual cultivation.

Fall From a Building.

Yesterday afternoon Mat. Stain, a workman employed on a building in course of erection in the rear of No. 2920 Broadway, fell from the top of the completed wall to the ground, a distance of some 25 feet. The man fell on his shoulders and head, receiving a very severe scalp wound in the back of his head about two or three inches long. He was taken in an ambulance to the Dispensary, where his wounds were dressed, after which he was conveyed to the City Hospital. Stain is a single man and has no relatives in this city. His injuries are not considered dangerous.

THE Katie P. Kountz is coming from New Orleans with the Yaeger.

THE Star Liner Jo. Kinney will back out tomorrow at 5 p. m. for Kansas City.

THE Alex. Kendall will back out at regular hour for Louisiana and way landings.

THE Raven will be here to-morrow or next day and will probably return to New Orleans.

THE J. S. Neel's barge Lillie was sunk on Saturday at Evansville with 7,000 bags of corn.

THE Mollie Moore, Kountz Line, will leave this evening for Camden, Ouachita, and way landings.

THE Ironsides, with a tow of Wheeling manufactures, bound for St. Louis, passed down this morning.

THE popular Minneapolis, of the Keokuk Northern Line, leaves to-day for Keokuk and way landings.

THE City of Alton, Capt. Bixby, Anchor Line, for New Orleans this evening from foot of Market street.

THE Iron Age is coming along from Pittsburg all right. The Alice is also under way. The Carrier is loading.

LOUISVILLE, 28: The Victory added 1,000 brls of cement at the Falls Mills and departed for St. Louis to-night.

CAPT. REYNOLDS is putting some repairs on the Laura L. Davis, at New Orleans, and will start her to Cincinnati this week.

THE good and reliable steamer Annie, Keokuk Northern Line, will leave this evening for St. Paul, Dubuque, La Crosse and way landings.

NEW ORLEANS Times: James B. Keenan leaves on Monday next for St. Louis to resume his position as clerk of the mountain steamer Butte.

THE Cherokee, Capt. Geo. Wolf, W. H. Keyt clerk, will leave for Pittsburg and way landings this evening. No Ohio River boatmen are better deserving of patronage.

NATCHEZ, March 27.—Anchor Line steamer Centennial will leave New Orleans for St. Louis on Thursday, 1st.

THOS. L. DAVIDSON, Master.

CAPT. W. T. BOARDMAN is lying very low with pneumonia at Dr. Williams', at the mouth of Loggy Bayou. Captain Joe Morgan will command the Alexandria during Boardman's illness.

MR. JAS. B. EADS leaves to-morrow to inspect the jetties, and will stop at Vicksburg at the request of the Mayor and principal citizens to see what can be done to repair the injury done to the harbor by the cut-off.

THE danger of an overflow below Memphis is happily past. The levees are still intact on the Arkansas side from Helena to Arkansas City. There is no danger of a break anywhere as long as the Mississippi does not rise.

THE J. B. Williams passed up the Ohio at Evansville on Saturday towing twenty-four "pieces"—as coal barges are called. The Williams is a powerful boat, such as will be numerous in the St. Louis and New Orleans trade.

THE ice has broken up and disappeared from the Red River of the North, in Northern Dakota and Manitoba; the snow, of which there was been an abundance, is rapidly melting, and the farmers are preparing to put in their wheat.

NATCHEZ Democrat: The staunch barge Buckeye, which has been moored at the coal fleet for a few months, has been sold to the proprietor of the New Sensation show to take the place of the barge sunk at Vidalia a day or two ago.

RECEIVED at New Orleans on Sunday morning from St. Louis, 400,000 bushels grain in bulk, largest receipt there on record. It was done by three steamers and their attendant barges. This is equal to 12,000 tons, equal to twelve former steamboat cargoes.

WITH the resumption of navigation the lake sailors, we observe, are giving notice of a strike for higher wages all along the line; and as poor Jack is in the toils of the union, this notification will probably be adhered to. The effect of this, as usual, will be to drive business to the railroads.

CHAS. E. SHALLY, years ago a steamboat and discharging clerk, and also well known in railroad circles, died Thursday, after a long illness, and was buried at New Orleans Friday. Mr. Shally was a native of Ohio. Plenty of labor is now had at New Orleans at 25 and 30 cents an hour. The 40 cent move is burst.

A HIGH mound in the rear of Arkansas City is literally covered with live stock. In several instances the water-besieged occupants of houses have killed and dressed their hogs to prevent their entire loss. Great damage has been done, not only by the interruption of business, but through the drowning of stock.

CINCINNATI Times, 29: Captain Alex Perry, the boat builder, is back in the city after a lengthy sojourn in the South prospecting for business. He has associated himself with the Paducah Ways, where a lively season of boat building is expected. Captain Perry is a first-class mechanic and ought to be at Cincinnati.

PITTSBURG, 28.—Boats in port: George Roberts, Ed Hobbs, Iron City, C. W. Batchelor, Traveler, Nellie Walton, W. C. Guffey, Storm, Tom Rees No. 2, Grand Lake, Hornet No. 2, Michigan, Enterprise, James A. Blackmore, N. J. Bigley No. 2, Joseph Walton, Ark. Smoky City, Wm. Stone, Josh Cook, Samuel Clark, Alice Brown, Whale, Abe Hayes, Veteran. There will be a light barge run of coal.

WINONA, March 28.—The following appointments are announced on the boats of the Diamond Jo line: The steamer Josephine, B. A. Conger, captain; C. C. Mather, clerk. The Libbie Conger, Wm. Boland, captain; J. R. Robinson, clerk. The Josie, John Killeen, captain; clerk to be appointed. The Diamond Jo, F. I Sherwood, captain; Mason, clerk. Imperial, John B. Davis, captain. About the first of June Captain Davis and the crew of the Imperial will take the new boat now under construction for the Diamond Jo line. The boat has not yet been named.

New Lights Between New Orleans and Natchez.

The Lily has located the following new lights and made changes between New Orleans and Natchez: New lights—One at Bonnet Carre, Sharp Point, one at Madam Vone's White Castle; one at Bayou Goula bend; one at Bayou Goula landing; one opposite Point Pleasant; one opposite Luda bar; one at E J. Gray's St. Louis plantation; one on top of coal office, Natchez. Changes—Light opposite Duncan's Point moved down 200 yards to high ground; Morgan bend crevasse moved up to landing during high water. Discontinued—Lower light at St. Catherine's bend discontinued during high water.

THE trial of one bottle of Hall's Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer will show most beneficial effect upon the hair and scalp.

THE CAUSE REVEALED.

How Various Ills of Human Life are Explained,

—AND—

THEIR ORIGIN UNDERSTOOD.

Discovery of a Subtle Acid in the Blood

WHICH CAUSES

Pain, Disease and Often Death.

—THE—

Way by Which it Gets Into the System

—AND—

How It Can Be Kept Out.

SOME NEW

Scientific Facts of Great Importance.

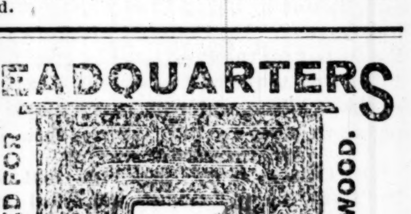

One of the most important revelations of the present time is the discovery beyond a doubt that Uric Acid in the blood is the cause of all Rheumatic troubles. This acid causes a fermentation which gives great pain to the muscles, stiffens the joints, and often blasts the entire life. The natural question is: "How does this poisonous uric acid get into the blood?" The answer is easy: It is because the kidneys do not properly perform their functions and throw off this acid through the natural channels, thus permitting it to get scattered through the entire system. This is logic; it is science. It is going right to the source of the stream, as all readers can readily see. It would be as easy to dam the Nile with bulrushes as to attempt to annihilate confirmed rheumatic troubles by lotions and rubbings; but by putting the kidneys in a healthy condition the cause is removed, and the uric acid leaves the system instead of remaining in the blood.

The most certain ruler and regulator of the Kidneys known to mankind is Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure. Its power over these organs is simply wonderful. Read the following:

SALT LAKE CITY, January 23, 1880.
H. H. Warner & Co., Rochester, N. Y.

GENTLEMEN—In 1877, at Washington, D. C., I experienced a severe attack of Pneumonia, terminating in Hepatitis (inflammation of the liver), which gradually extended to the kidneys. My entire system was in a terrible condition. My skin became yellow, dry and feverish; my limbs began to swell, and with certain death staring me in the face, I became utterly despondent. I was kept by my physician—one of the best in Washington—upon an exclusive milk diet for five months, with no improvement, but an aggravation of all my symptoms. My case seemed utterly hopeless, and was so regarded by a council of the most eminent physicians in the city. Death seemed inevitable. By the advice of a friend I was induced to try Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure, and in ten weeks I was entirely restored, and I verily believe Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure the best medicine ever prepared. I am, gentlemen, gratefully, yours, O. J. AVERELL, Clerk Supreme Court of the Territory of Utah.

It is needless to comment upon such testimony; it is unquestionable. Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure is for sale by all druggists. For the kidneys it is pre-eminent, and for rheumatic troubles unequaled.

State of Missouri, City of St. Louis, ss.
In the Probate Court for the City of St. Louis, March Term, 1880.
Monday, March 29, A. D. 1880.
Estate of Bernard Rose.

Now, at this day, comes Martrom D. Lewis, public Administrator, having charge of the estate of Bernard Rose, deceased, and presents to the Court his petition praying for an order for the sale of so much of the real estate of said deceased as will pay and satisfy the remaining debts due by said estate, and yet unpaid for want of sufficient assets, accompanied by the accounts, lists and inventories required by law in such case, on examination whereof it is ordered that all persons interested in the estate of said deceased be notified that application, as aforesaid, has been made, and that unless the contrary be shown on or before the first day of the next term of this Court, to be begun and held at the city of St. Louis, within and for the city of St. Louis, on the first Monday of June next, an order will be made for the sale of the whole or so much of the real estate of said deceased as will be sufficient for the payment of said debts; and it is further ordered that a copy hereof be published in some newspaper printed in the city of St. Louis aforesaid, for four weeks before the next term of this Court.

A true copy from the record.

State of Missouri, City of St. Louis, ss.
In the Circuit Court City of St. Louis, February Term, 1880.
Monday, March 29, 1880
Mary Alice King,
vs.
Patrick Henry King.

It appearing from plaintiff's affidavit filed herein this day that the defendant is not a resident of the State of Missouri, so that the ordinary process of law cannot be served upon him, therefore, on motion of plaintiff, by attorney, it is ordered that said defendant be notified that a civil action has been commenced against him, the object and general nature of which is to obtain a decree of divorce from the bonds of matrimony existing between plaintiff and defendant, on the ground that defendant has offered plaintiff such indignities as to render her condition intolerable and on the ground of adultery and for an order that plaintiff may have the care and custody of the minor child of said parties; and unless the defendant appear at the term of this court to be begun and held at the City of St. Louis, within and for said city, on the first Monday of June next, and on or before the third day thereof, answer the plaintiff's petition, the same will be taken against him as confessed.

And it is further ordered that a copy hereof be published according to law in the St. Louis POST-DISPATCH, a newspaper printed and published in the city of St. Louis.

Josephine Bateman
vs.
Samuel N. Bateman.

It appearing from the petition and affidavit heretofore filed herein that the defendant is a nonresident of the State of Missouri; wherefore on motion of plaintiff by attorney it is ordered by the court that said defendant be notified that a civil action has been commenced against him, the object and general nature of which is to obtain a decree of divorce from the bonds of matrimony existing between the plaintiff and the defendant on the grounds that the defendant, wholly disregarding his duties as a husband, from the time of the marriage of said parties wholly neglected and failed to provide anything for the support of the plaintiff, and on the 1st day of December, 1877, wholly and altogether deserted her; and unless he appear at the term of this court to be begun and held at the city of St. Louis, within and for the city of St. Louis, on the first Monday of June next, and, on or before the third day thereof, answer the plaintiff's petition, the same will be taken against him as confessed.

And it is further ordered that a copy hereof be published according to law in the St. Louis POST-DISPATCH, a newspaper printed and published in the city of St. Louis.

Robert B. Brown, Plaintiff,
vs.
The Unknown Heirs of Casper Wineberg, deceased, Defendants.

The plaintiff having alleged in his petition, under oath, that the heirs of said Casper Wineberg, deceased, are unknown, and that he believes they are interested in the subject matter of the petition herein, and in the truth or falsity of the averments of said petition as to the nature of the interest and title at one time vested in the said Casper Wineberg, to the land hereinafter described, and that their names cannot be inserted in said petition because they are unknown to the plaintiff, and the court being satisfied that defendants cannot be served with the ordinary process of law, it is ordered that said defendants be notified that a civil action has been commenced against them, the object and general nature of which is to obtain a judgment and decree of said court divesting them as heirs of said Casper Wineberg, deceased, of all right, title or interest in and to the land hereinafter described, and declaring and establishing that a certain deed, dated July 24, A. D. 1840, wherein and whereby one Charles J. Carpenter conveyed to said Casper Wineberg the following described real estate, situate in the city of St. Louis and State of Missouri, to-wit: A lot in blocks 2257 and 2258 of said city, beginning at the southeast corner of lot six (6) of the third series of the subdivision of the Chouteau Mill tract, being United States survey numbered 363, and running thence along the south line of said lot six (6) west 211 feet, thence north and parallel with Jefferson (or Pratt) avenue 54 feet and 7½ inches to the land of the Pacific Railroad, thence east on the south line of said land 211 feet, more or less, to said Jefferson (or Pratt) avenue, and thence south on the west line of said Jefferson (or Pratt) avenue 80 feet, more or less, to the point of beginning—was made to said Casper Wineberg, as trustee, in trust for the use and benefit of the United Hebrew Congregation, of the city of St. Louis, and that the said Wineberg was not the owner of said land in his own right, and that plaintiff is now fully vested with the fee simple title, to said land as grantee of said United Hebrew Congregation and the successors in trust of said Casper Wineberg, and unless defendents appear at the term of this Court to be begun and held at the city of St. Louis, within and for the city of St. Louis, on the first Monday of June next, and, on or before the third day thereof, answer the plaintiff's petition, the same will be taken against them as confessed.

And it is further ordered that a copy hereof be published according to law in the St. Louis POST-DISPATCH, a newspaper printed and published in the city of St. Louis.

THE English permitted James Gordon Bennett's horse Muscadine to win a small race to-day.

MR. FROST did himself credit in the House yesterday by vigorously opposing the entire Diplomatic and Consular fraud.

THE regular Democrats of New York State will appoint delegates to the Cincinnati Convention at Syracuse on the 20th of April.

A THOUSAND starving Slovaks from Hungary have arrived at New York. It will be far better to feed these people than to encourage North Pole fishermen.

EX-SENATOR DORSEY is the gentleman who vouches for the delivery of the Arkansas vote to Grant at Chicago. The cause could scarcely have a more appropriate agent.

THE anti-Grant Republicans and the anti-Tammany Democrats are uniting in New York City to oppose the Arthur-Conkling machine. That strikes us as a rather feeble and undesirable copartnership.

GOV. PHELPS is playing the big lion at St. Joe to-day. If his reception comes up to the announcements, he will doubtless obtain his own consent to be a candidate for Vice-President before night.

GEN. GRANT has solemnly promised to never forget the kindness of the people of Texas. If he keeps on hippodroming and exhibiting himself, he will have so much kindness to remember that he won't be able to attend to the ordinary duties of life.

J. B. S. LEMOINE, president of the Safe Deposit Company, was fined $500 this morning by Judge Dennison, of the Second District Police Court, for having a nuisance in the shape of a stagnant pond on property belonging to him, located on Grand avenue near Montgomery street. The filling of the pond would not have cost over $50. He will probably now conclude to do this as a matter of economy.

AFTER several months of patient investigation, Senator Voorhees' committee, which has been trying to trace the cause of the negro exodus from the South, has thrown up the sponge. An expensive candle has been consumed in this work, but it has had the effect of scaring off the Parson Conways and other agitators who were toiling the negroes away from their Southern homes for political effect.

SAN FRANCISCO is engaged in a life and death struggle to-day with the sand-lot pariahs at the ballot-box. The Democrats and Republicans of the State Committees have endorsed the ticket of the Citizens' Protective Union, though the County Democratic Committee is co-operating with the Kearneyites. As the municipal machinery is in the hands of Kalloch and the sand-lotters, a close and exciting contest is taking place.

PROF. IRA D. SANKEY, whose musical ear is acute and well-trained, has made deposition to the effect that he has heard the chimes on various churches and public institutions in Europe and that he considers the bells on the Pilgrim Congregational Church, in this city, as melodious and as sweetly attuned as any he ever encountered in the range of his travels. As we understand it, the musical quality of the chimes of the Pilgrim Church is not in question. The two or three nervous people who complain of them are opposed to the magnitude of the sound. They are jarred by the concussion. If the music were as perfect as the cadence of the falling waters of the fountains of Lindaraxa they would still be unhappy, for it is the volume and not the character of the metallic music that makes life a burden to them.

MR. BLACKBURN proposed in the committee of the whole House yesterday to amend the consular and diplomatic appropriation bill by cutting off the pay of our foreign representatives when absent from their posts. As this would deprive our loungers of the privilege of travel at Government expense and would interfere with their coming home to participate in political campaigns, the motion was lost. The Democratic reformers in Congress seem to shrink from the task of pruning our burdensome diplomatic and consular system. They seem to be full of the idea that some of these days there will be a Democratic President and then these soft places will be in demand for the heavy party workers—the gentlemen whose intellects will be so much in need of the restful calm which a consular billet in a warm climate grants.

CAPT. HOWGATE, an enterprising gentleman who has been pounding at the doors of Congress for several years, asking for an appropriation to enable him to assault the North Pole, has decided to make an insane attempt on the 15th of May at his own expense. He proposes to approach the valuable Pole as Halleck moved upon Corinth—by gradual approaches. His system of circumvallation is simple enough. He proposes to go as far north as possible with a party this summer and leave the colony where it will be in fine position for an early start next spring, provided it escapes freezing. A proposition has been made to have the merchants of St. Louis contribute a car-load of provisions for the Captain's ship. So long as the cries of the starving come up from the four quarters of the globe this would be worse than folly. Science may have an interest in determining the temperature at the world's apex, but one hundred years of futile attempts have demonstrated that civilization will never be particularly benefited by discoveries made in remote and inaccessible fields of snow and ice. Congress has shown its good sense by shutting the public purse against the zealous North Pole crusaders, and it is to be hoped that the public will be as chary about assisting brave men to destitution and death. To James Gordon Bennett and other wealthy philanthropists let the task of hunting for what nobody cares particularly about finding be confined.

THE GOVERNORSHIP.

The hitherto quiet contest between Col. Crittenden and John A. Hockaday for the Governorship has become unexpectedly enlivened by the "open letter" of Mr. D. Robert Barclay, in which he charges Mr. Hockaday with having received a "bribe" of $30,000 from the Hannibal and St. Joe Railroad.

We have not published Mr. Barclay's letter, though, in spite of its poor style, it is quite interesting. But it shows malice on its face. It presents long currrent suspicions and charges in a definite form, but without evidence. We would not convict our worst enemy on mere charges without proof. If Mr. Hockaday will refute them, the "open letter" will help rather than hurt him. If he cannot refute them, beyond a shadow of doubt Mr. Hockaday's candidacy is sheer folly. In the meanwhile he is entitled to the benefit of the doubt.

Col. Crittenden is much luckier. Nobody has written an open letter or preferred the slightest charge against him. On the contrary. Everybody seems to like him, and speaks highly of his character and his abilities. His canvass so far has been remarkably successful. He seems to have friends everywhere, and people of the very best character flock to his standard. He is even fortunate in some of his enemies, whose opposition is more valuable than their friendship.

There is some talk of presenting a new candidate for the Governorship from St. Louis. No doubt many Democrats in this city are gentlemen of conspicuous fitness. There is Charles Gibson, for instance, who unites great learning and astuteness with the clearest head and the purest Democracy. There is Charles P. Johnson, whose personal magnetism and eloquence are known throughout the state. There is Don Morrison, Thomas Allen, James Broadhead, James Lindley, Thomas Gantt, Samuel Glover, Erastus Wells, Alonzo Slayback, Albert Todd, either of whom would, perhaps, make a good Governor. But all these gentlemen have their eye on the Senatorship and would consider it almost punishment and banishment to live four years at Jefferson City. In fact, St. Louis never did care for the Governorship. Trusten Polk was the only St. Louis Governor ever elected by the Democracy before the war, and he only held the office for a few months to go to the Senate. The only other possible exception is the most brilliant Governor Missouri ever had, B. Gratz Brown, but he was a citizen of Iron county, we believe, when he was elected in 1870.

It is very improbable that St. Louis will place a candidate for the Governorship in the field.

It is more than probable that as between Crittenden and Hockaday the vote of St. Louis will be cast for the former, thereby insuring Col. Crittenden's nomination.

SO FAR as we have been able to observe the anti-Grant Republican newspapers are not holding out as much encouragement to ex-Senator Henderson's St. Louis Convention as circumstances would seem to warrant. The Cincinnati Commercial, the most pronounced of the independent press in its opposition to Grant, says that the organizers of the demonstration have made a mistake in assuming that Grant is cocksure to be nominated at Chicago. If this is so the Commercial thinks that the proposed demonstration in this city on the 6th of May will not have the effect of changing the schemes of the third-term boomers unless it should prove to be much larger than anybody anticipates. While arguing that the move of Mr. Henderson and his colleagues is premature and a confession that the country is in imminent danger of a third-term candidate, the Commercial says:

The Chicago Convention has been fairly admonished that a third-term candidate will not be accepted by those Republicans who subscribed to the declaration of the Republican Congress of 1875 that any departure from the precedent established by Washington and observed by his successors "would be unwise, unpatriotic and fraught with peril to our free institutions." Even the apprehension of a Democratic administration for four years to come will not dragoon them into the support of a third-term candidate. The anti-third-termers have given the most emphatic expression to these sentiments, and they will upon all occasions reiterate them, as well after as before the nomination is made. They are, from deep and inwrought convictions, inflexibly opposed to the third-term principle, and, were Gen. Grant abler as a civil officer than he has shown himself to be, they would oppose his renomination and re-election all the same.

This is certainly emphatic enough. If the Republican editors who are opposed to Grant would burn the bridges behind them within the next three weeks as Mr. Halsted has done the third-term boomers would be everlastingly settled.

WHILE addressing the Senate yesterday Mr. Thurman was seized with a sort of vertigo and was compelled to retire to a committee-room temporarily. Mr. Thurman is sixty-four years of age. Although a sterling old Roman in intellect and physical vigor throughout his life, he has at last crossed the equatorial line, and will henceforth be classed among the semi-retired Nestors. Two years ago, in the midst of an active campaign in Ohio, he broke down and was compelled to retire from the field. From that day to this his health has been precarious. The Senator has been a hard worker all his life. Though of full habit, his life has been a sedentary one. Added to his close application in the office and the court, there is an element of conviviality in his nature which has doubtless contributed to the impairment of his digestive organs. Big dinners, active mental work and irregular hours combine to place most of our statesmen hors du combat after sixty. Mr. Thurman has been looming into prominence daily as a prospective candidate for the Presidency, but this stroke will be likely to relegate him to the ranks of the invalids and the politically wounded in the convalescent camps.

As General Grant was riding through the streets of Houston, Texas, yesterday, a heroic young man drew near unto his carriage and shouted, "Hurrah for Jeff Davis." Col. Tracy, who sat beside the great man, remarked that in a city of 25,000 inhabitants there was likely to be one damned fool. The General coincided and added: "There are fools all the world over." This shows again the advantage of travel in the case of Grant. If he had not circumnavigated the globe, and if he had not been all his life a man of close observation, he would not have been able to assure Col. Tracy that fools could be found in every section of the habitable globe. If the General will continue his travels through this country, denying himself that blissful repose at Galena for which his tired spirit yearns, he will discover that we have a large percentage of fools in this country, and that they are divided into two classes—those who shout for Jefferson Davis and those who clamor for a third term.

BERNARD MACAULEY, who built, in Louisville, one of the handsomest theaters in the country, now says: "The man who builds a magnificent theater makes a mistake. The elegance and elaboration of the auditorium cheapen all scenic effect and make it look tawdry and commonplace. If I ever build another theater I will make my auditorium as plain as is consistent with good taste. Then any effort I may make at scenic splendor or stage effect will be heighened and enhanced by the comparison with the front of the house." If Mr. Macauley ever takes a notion to build another theater he will probably pause long enough to let somebody else have the job, but if he should erect one according to his present idea, he will make a grievous mistake. A dark and sombre theater is an abomination. It is impossible to make one too bright or rich in ornamentation. When the play is on, the auditorium can always be darkened and the scenic effects made to stand out with all necessary prominence. When the curtain is down the auditorium can be lighted up and the audience can enjoy the beauties of the decoration and the glitter so pleasing to all eyes. No audience can be made to look well, or can be kept in a good humor in a theatrical "Cave of Gloom." The gaslight and the display and the social chatter entr'acte constitute the glory of the theater.

MESSRS. COCKRELL and Wells have introduced into both houses of Congress simultaneously a bill for the opening of direct trade between the Mississippi valley and Brazil. The measure contemplates the establishment of a steamship line to carry the mails between New Orleans and various Brazilian ports via the West India Islands and do a general express and freight business. The subsidy proposed is $25 per nautical mile for carrying mails, and our Consuls at the various ports are to receive and forward express packages under Custom-house instructions from the State Department. The packages are not to weigh over twenty pounds, and may be sent from any part of the United States by the domestic mails to New Orleans at the same rate as first-class matter. A special from Washington to the Globe-Democrat says that this bill, it is understood, meets with the approval of the Postmaster-General and the Secretary of State, and will supersede the bill of Mr. Ellis, of Louisiana, so far as relates to the Steamship line from New Orleans to Brazil, which is supposed to favor Mr. John Roach in his effort to obtain the New Orleans line as well as that of New York. Roach's threat to take off his New York line if Congress does not give him a subsidy as well as a monopoly to build all the steamships for the American service will strengthen the cause of the St. Louis company.

WHEN the plan to keep up the summer stage of water in the Mississippi by maintaining a system of reservoirs on the upper river goes into effect, care should be taken to provide the tanks with iron bottoms and furnaces. In the winter time the surplus water can be heated and turned into the river. The ice will be kept thawed out and boats will be able to make trips all the year round.

AMONG the new newspaper announcements may be mentioned the new journal to be started in Boston by Daniel Pratt, the great American traveler. Mr. Pratt has withdrawn from the contest for the Presidency to give up his entire time to the new paper. It is to be called the Gridiron, and will roast people who regard Grant as a greater traveler than Pratt.

THE Chicago Inter-Ocean says that J. H. McVicker, the well-known theatrical manager, admits that he is a Democrat, but says that if Gen. Grant is nominated he will lay aside party ties and vote the Republican ticket. Mr. McVicker is probably induced to take this course out of respect to dead-heads.

THE friends of Col. Eugene Edward Fairfax Williamson have no difficulty in establishing the fact that he is insane. It is worthy of remark, though, that nobody ever hears of the Colonel's mental distress except when he is in a tight box. His insanity appears to be of the handy kind.

HON. JOSEPH MEDILL, of the Chicago Tribune, has unwittingly stumbled on a fortune. He has discovered that the audiphone can be used as a fan in hot weather and has taken out a patent on the wind-pushing feature.

IT is said that John Sherman has hired a brigade of painters to go through the country and paint on the fences and big rocks the following startling announcement: "I am a candidate.—J. Sherman."

THOSE troublesome Turcomans are tax-dodgers also. They have not only refused to pay the four years' taxes demanded of them by the Shah of Persia, but have gone to fighting him about it.

Spring Poem.

Hark! I hear a bunyan sing,
Bunyans now are on the wing,
And their voices ringing clear
Tell us that the Journalist is near—

Filling in his unemployed time by starting afternoon newspapers and supplying a want long felt.

In the Spring the Johnny-Jump-ups lift their modest little heads,
In the Spring the careful gardner 'gins to rake his onion beds,
In the Spring the orange peddler howls with racket most infernal.
In the Spring the Able Journalist starts his little Evening Journal.

The Work Goes On.

[From the New York World.]

Texas falls into line for Grant. The Republican machine creaked a little, but a copious application of elbow-grease overcame the friction; the recording angel chalked up six-teen votes for Grant, and, shedding a sneer upon Blaine's chances, wiped them out forever.

The Lone Fisherman.

[From the Philadelphia Times.]

We are reminded that the fishing season is again approaching by the simple and unaffected announcement of Vice-President Wheeler that he expects to leave Washington shortly, not to return during the remainder of the season. Of course he will leave word about where he may be hunted for if he should be nominated for anything at Chicago.

A Fresh Discovery.

Dinner Etiquette for Gentlemen.

ST. LOUIS, March 29, 1880.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

In you enterprising paper of this evening a correspondent signing himself "Stranger" asks for information relative to full dress for dinner parties. As "Stranger" is evidently ignorant of the usages of the best society, owing, no doubt, to his short residence in a metropolitan city, I desire to inform him that a Prince Albert or a frock coat, dark vest and light pants are considered appropriate. "Stranger's" knowledge as to the style of dress at evening parties must have been derived from associating with the servants, for all educated persons know when the "claw-hammer" comes in Franklin states that a dress coat may cover a fool but not conceal him. What "Stranger's" ideas of public entertainments of "a digestive character" are, needs explanation. Probably the war-like Colonel he alludes to may have as much information on this subject as on the dress question. A gentleman may be "too poor to put mean habit on" but he certainly would not appear at an entertainment merely as the advertiser of his tailor.

BACHELOR.

What the Nailers Say.

St. Louis, March 29.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The paragraphist of a morning paper, who has not sought to make a reputation for accuracy, and not unfrequently shown a disposition to sacrifice truth to a display of rhetoric or a questionable kind of wit, referring to the late action of the Nail Association in agreeing to limit the production, says: "These 'patriots,' not satisfied with the protection afforded them as against foreign competition, combine to maintain an exorbitant price," etc.

A correspondent replying to him says: "The object is to protect jobbers who are now carrying excessive stocks," etc.

Neither position is correct. "Will you have the truth on't?" The nail manufacturers don't need protection from the Government. Nails are not an article of import, but of export, as witness United States Almanac Reports, collated from the Treasury Department, '78 and '79: No cut nails imported; exports $542,959. If it had been their cue to seek protection, they would have plied it against ore men, whose prices are 200 per cent above last year's; coke men, whose prices are 500 per cent above last year, and labor, which has been unreasonable in some of its demands. All of these forces are combined, so to speak (though not amalgamated), against manufacturers of iron and nails for this year, and it behooves them, not so much for the protection of jobbers as for their own protection, to hold present card rates, and this they propose to do by the most approved method, viz.: keeping the production within limits of demand by stopping two weeks or two months whenever necessary to attain this END.

THE best investment I ever made, said Judge R——, as he lightly waltzed along to the surprise of his friends, was fifty cents for St. Jacobs Oil, which cured me of gout.

Criminal Court.

In the Criminal Court this morning Frank Miller and George Wilson, indicted for burglary in the second degree and larceny, withdrew their pleas of not guilty and pleaded guilty to grand larceny. They were sentenced to two years in the Penitentiary. John Lynch, found guilty of assaulting Officer Maloney, was sentenced to six months in the Workhouse. Michael Hughes, found guilty of assaulting Cove Herbert by a jury, was sentenced in accordance with that verdict, to pay a fine of $100. Alexander MacPherson, John Laurie and Wm. Houston were each sentenced to a term of three years and one day in the Penitentiary in accordance with a verdict which found them guilty of burglary and larceny. The attorneys for Joseph Michael Kotovsky, under indictment for murder, made an application for the list of jurors to be summoned at the time the case comes up for trial.

Knocked Down and Kicked.

A difficulty took place yesterday afternoon between James O'Donnell and Ike Chambers, in the saloon of Fabian Wansowicz, No. 1412 Levee. The cause of the altercation is unknown, but the result of the affray was that O'Donnell, the white man, was badly beaten up by his colored antagonist. The former was knocked down and was kicked in the face and side by Chambers. O'Donnell was taken to the City Hospital, while Chambers made his escape. He is described as a mulatto, six feet high, slight build, wearing a moustache and chin whiskers.

IRELAND'S CAUSE.

St. Louis Irish Nationalists Repudiate James Stephens.

Bitter Invective Against the Head-Center—What the National Party is Doing.

Threats of Introducing Nihilistic Warfare in England—Watching and Waiting.

James Stephens, the Fenian Head-Center who is now in this city on a mission to revitalize the Fenian movement, has not met with a very cordial or hearty reception from the Irish citizens. Indeed, Stephens is looked upon as "played out," and the leaders of the present Irish Nationalist party here do not recognize the Head-Center in any manner. A reporter this morning met one of the leaders of the Irish National party here, a prominent Celtic citizen, and one who for the past twenty years has always been foremost in any movement looking towards the redemption of the green isle from Sassenach rule and oppression. In response to the reportorial query the gentleman expressed his distrust of the once puissant Stephens. Said he: "James Stephens in '66 in the city of New York swore in the presence of several gentlemen, ex-officers of the United States army who were then on their way to Ireland to lead the Irish, that he had then 25,000 stands of arms in that country. Believing this to be the fact and so far having no reason to doubt it, these gentlemen went to Ireland. On their arrival they learned that not 1,000 stand of arms were there. The men that he had promised them, all organized, were

CRYING OUT FOR WEAPONS.

Stephens, instead of going direct to Ireland with these parties, went to Paris, and of the money which was contributed for the Irish revolutionary movement considerable was spent in fitting up a grand palace for him to live in. Later he went to Ireland, was arrested and escaped, but the police are familar with those events. Even since the failure of '66 he has lived in Paris. There is no doubt the movement in '66 would have succeeded if every promise made by Stephens had not been broken. He continued to live in Paris up to a year and a half ago. The gentlemen who have been conducting the Irish national affairs for the last ten or twelve years, recognizing, however, that Stephens was an organizer of undoubted ability, approached him in Paris and asked him to do what he could in the new organization, because Fenianism is dead to-day; there is nothing left of it. His answer was, 'I will not play second fiddle to any man or class of men. I am the leader of the Irish people!' At that time there were not fifty people in Ireland who believed in him. Now all this time

HE HAS BEEN SUPPORTED IN PARIS

by Irishmen living there, chief among whom is John O'Leary. Finding that he could do nothing on the banks of the Seine or in Ireland, he came to America. In New York City several of the men to whom he made these promises in 1866 met him. He then denied having sworn so, but he was confronted by nearly a score of them and convicted of falsehood. It was these misstatements and lies of Stephens that precipitated the movement in '66 and thus caused its failure. Of course, he was repudiated in New York. Finding himself nonplussed, Stephens tries to curry favor with a very strong organization in this country—the Ancient Order of Hibernians; and, while that is a secret organization, it is composed almost exclusively of Catholics. Now, in '66 Stephens was red hot against the priests—a regular carbonari. Lately, however, he has become a thorough Catholic, and it seems as if merely for a purpose. Stephens went to Chicago to carry out his purpose, and claims to have founded a circle there. His supporters do not number a corporal's guard, but in Chicago there were certain soreheads and others who had been expelled from the National party, and they took hold of him. Now he has come to St. Louis. He is trying to raise the wind. He has scarcely a satchel left and wants to raise some more contributions, but we have done with him."

THE IRISH NATIONALISTS.

"Have you still an organization here?"

"Yes. On the ruins of Fenianism rise the Irish National party. It has been organized for years, and has branches in South America and everywhere that our race congregates. Their fund in this country to-day amounts to $300,000."

"How many members of the party are there in St. Louis?"

"Over 1,000. All we do is to hold regular meetings. Our organization is perfect. We are ready. But our motto is 'watch and wait.' We want no more precipitancy. We recognize the strength of England. But I will tell you one thing, that, should Beaconsfield and a Conservative majority be returned to Parliament, which I think will take place, and repressive measures be adopted by him in Ireland, you may look for dirty work."

"What do you mean by dirty work?"

"Well, I mean dirty work. The Irish will become desperate and you may see the Nihilistic mode of revolutionary warfare transferred to England, with headquarters in America."

"Do you mean to say you would countenance assassination?"

"Personally I would be opposed to it. But when men are desperate, and all remedies have failed, they will become desperate in their despair. If Ireland's enemies fall by the dagger and the bullet, we can organize a reign of terror. England's leaders will fall one by one before the avenging arm of the frenzied Celt, and in her turn she may greet those terms she now refuses."

Further questions were put to the Nationalist, but he refused to answer them, and the interview closed. The gentleman who gave utterance to these views is a prominent Irish leader, one, too, who leans to conservatism in action, and his opinions may be taken as a faithful reflex of the revolutionary, active Irish sentiment in St. Louis.

A Suit Against the Butchers' and Drovers' Bank.

Mr. W. H. Clopton to-day filed a suit against the defunct Butchers' and Drovers' Bank for Mary Cummings. The petition alleges that the plaintiff, on the first of March, 1877, deposited with the bank the sum of $1,000 and took a note therefor, which had six months to run and bearing interest at six per cent. When the note fell due it was not paid and it never has been paid, wherefore plaintiff asks judgment for $1,000 with interest.

It is not known why a suit of this kind is brought in this way. It may indicate some new turn to be taken by the depositors of the Butchers' and Drovers' Bank.

The City Sues the Wiggins Ferry Company.

This morning Mr. Leverett Bell filed a suit against the Wiggins Ferry Company, in behalf of the city, for possession of a portion of the wharf between Mound and Lebaumme streets. The petition alleges that the ferry company took possession of the ground in 1875, and that it has greatly profited thereby. Mr. Bell asks for possession and for $10,000 damages.

REDEMEIER'S INSANITY.

Sheriff Finn Calls an Inquest to Sit on Monday Next.

What Mr. M. F. Taylor Has to Say on the Subject.

The question whether Redemeier is or is not insane at the present time will be finally put at rest by a jury to be impaneled by Sheriff Finn on Monday next. Witnesses will be examined, the doctors will have a rehearing, and in accordance with the provision of the statute made in the case, the Prosecuting Attorney, Col. J. C. Normile, has received the following letter of notification:

SHERIFF'S OFFICE,
ST. LOUIS, March 30, 1880.

Hon. J. C. Normile, Circuit Attorney Eighth Judicial Circuit.

DEAR SIR—In the matter of Henry J. Redemeier, sentenced to be executed on 23d April, 1880, you will please take notice that in pursuance of section 1947 of the Revised Statutes of Missouri a jury of twelve competent jurors will, be summoned by me to inquire into the insanity of said Redemeier. That such jury will be empaneled in the Probate Court room, city of St. Louis, on Monday, April 5, 1880, at the hour of 10 a. m., which said inquiry you will please attend as required by law, and produce such witnesses as you may desire.

Yours respectfully,
JOHN FINN,
Sheriff City of St. Louis.

It was intended at first to have the jury sit in the Police Court-room at the Four Courts, but it was subsequently decided to hold the sessions in the Probate rooms.

THE INQUIRY may take a week before the point at issue is definitely settled, and Mr. Merrick, Redemeier's attorney, is very much elated over the prospect of getting his client out of the clutches of the hangman.

This is the first proceeding of the kind which has ever occurred in St. Louis, or in Missouri, and there is much doubt among the legal authorities as to how the sittings are to be conducted. In all probability the Sheriff will sit as a judge, besides swearing and impaneling the jury.

As to the composition of the jury there is much doubt and discussion, and Mr. Finn is at present at work upon the panel. A reporter who happened to be in the vicinity of the Court-house this afternoon heard such well known names as Emil Preetorius, John H. Fisse, A. B. Winkelmeyer, Louis Fusz, Frank Gaiennie, John Jackson, John Scudder, A. Krieckhaus, E. O. Stanard and Joseph O'Neil taken up for consideration as part of the jury. Nothing will be known definitely, however, until Monday morning, when the jury will meet.

The Law in The Case.

A POST-DISPATCH reporter called on Mr. Mortimer F. Taylor, who was one of the Committee on Criminal Jurisprudence in the last House which framed the statute under which Redemeier will receive his novel trial, and asked that gentleman what he thought of Mr. Finn's action under the circumstances. "It seems to me," he said, "that further inquiry should be made before the Sheriff shall impanel a jury to try the questions raised by the attorney for Redemeier. If I understand the status of the matter, the question of Redemier's sanity was submitted to the trial jury when the indictment for murder was heard and both questions found adversely to him. It is now sought to retry one of these very issues. By reference to the statute under which this is attempted the language will be found as follows: "If, after any convict is sentenced to the punishment of death, the Sheriff shall have cause to believe that such convict has become insane, he may summons. It shall then be the duty of the Prosecuting Attorney to direct proceedings, and if there is a finding of insanity this finding shall be transmitted to the Governor and sentence suspended until such finding is acted upon. Let me also say in passing, that similar provision is made in the same connection for inquiry, where the convicted person is a woman and has become pregnant after conviction. That is, the two causes for suspension stand upon the same footing, viz.: —Condition reached after verdict and judgment.

"It is difficult to see how either of these sections can be strained into the construction sought to be put upon them in this instance. Insanity was Redemeier's defense. He sought shelter from punishment for his crime behind his plea that he was mentally irresponsible when he committed the crime. His defense was fully heard and determined against him. He sought review of this finding in two appellate tribunals, in both of which the finding was, in all things, affirmed, and done too upon this issue alone. How then can it be said that the Sheriff shall call a new jury for the purpose, as under the statute of inquiring into a matter that has arisen after verdict and judgment? It would seem that this is the very case comprehended by statute, and in any event to introduce at different system is fraught with very dangerous consequences to the administration of criminal law. At what stage of criminal procedure does the doctrine of res adjudicata come in, if not here?

"The attempt here sought to be made is novel, if we use no harsher term, and it does seem as if it should receive the promptest discouragement. Unless the statute quoted have such construction as will limit its application to causes arising after judgment and not raised at trial, it is a practical nullification of the work of both trial and appellate courts and does away, at one stroke, with all of our ideas of the force of the doctrine of res adjudicata. In conclusion let me say that I do not believe that these sections give any such authority as is assumed by the attorney of Redemeier."

New Buildings.

Ridgley is putting $300 worth of repairs in store west side of Fifth, between Wash and Franklin avenues.

G. Heideman is making some small alterations on the brick store on Franklin avenue, between Sixteenth and Seventeenth, north side.

J. L. Patterson is making some slight alterations on his building on the west side of Seventh, between Locust and St. Charles streets.

R. White is building a small brick dwelling on the north side of Miami, between Carondelet avenue and Wisconsin street at an expense of $600.

E. F. Rethwiln is putting $600 worth of alterations and repairs on his building on the south side of Easton, between Cardinal and Compton avenues.

The Home of the Friendless was granted a permit this morning to build a small brick building at a cost of $800 on the west side of Carondelet avenue, between Osceola and Neosho streets.

Let Out.

Nicholas Shore, Esq., has for a long time past kept a very successful saloon on the corner of Second and Almond streets, making so much that he concluded not very long ago to revisit the scenes of his youth. He cast about him for some time and finally picked Charles Schroeder as the most trustworthy young man he could find to manage his business in his absence. Charles was inducted into the office and given money and credit, which he used successfully up to yesterday morning, when he gathered up what spare shekels there were in the till, about $200, and departed without leaving any notice of his intentions. Schroeder is a German between thirty-five and forty years of age, five feet eight inches in height, dark complexion, wearing a mustache and imperial. The police are industriously seeking a clue.

ERB THE MURDERER.

His Case Commenced This Morning in the Criminal Court.

This morning in the Criminal Court the trial of William Henry Erb for the murder of his wife Rose Mion alias Aglae Rosalie Erb, was commenced. The murder was committed on the 19th of June, 1879, at the residence of the murdered woman, No. 319 S. Third street. It appears that Erb and his wife did not get along very well together and consequently a divorce was secured. After the two had been legally separated they lived together until about one year previous to the homicide when they again separated. Erb made an attempt to kill the woman about two years previous to her death, but was prevented by his son. On the 19th of last June Erb visited his divorced wife's house and stabbed her with a knife, inflicting two wounds, from which the woman died in a few moments after receiving them. Erb, after inflicting the wounds, threw the knife away and walked from the house. He was arrested that night, but denied all knowledge of the affair. The next morning he confessed his guilt, as also at the inquest of the coroner.

The prisoner this morning in court was represented by Allen and Coste as his attorneys. The State side of the case was conducted by Col. Normile and Murphy. The entire morning session and a good share of the afternoon was occupied in securing a jury, as forty additional jurors were summoned this morning for this particular case. The defense will attempt to prove the insanity of the prisoner superinduced by the excessive use of liquor.

The Strikers.

No change has taken place in the switchmen's strike. Last night six men were commissioned by Mayor Joyce, of East St. Louis, as Deputy Marshals, to act under the instructions of the Toledo and Wabash Company. All the roads now have men commissioned to look after their railroad property. Mr. E. L. Mills, of the Vandalia, called on Mayor Joyce, of East St. Louis, yesterday, and informed him that the employes and officers of that road were stoned on last Sunday, and desired all the protection the authorities could afford. Mayor Joyce at once communicated with City Marshal Renshaw, who will send all the aid he can conveniently afford to the island to assist in preserving order. Things are moving smoothly on all the roads now and considerable freight is being shipped.

Circuit Court Notes.

Judge Boyle has adjourned till Friday, and it would look very desolate in No. 3 were it not for the beaming smile that is always playing like sunshine upon the face of Clerk Walsh.

Judges Lindley and Adams returned to the city this morning, after an absence of two days on a fishing tour. It is impossible to learn what luck they had, but from the depressed look on Judge Lindley's face when he took his seat this morning, is is supposed to have been bad.

Messrs. John B. Henderson, Charles Gibson and D. T. Jewitt are to-day arguing one of the Hammond land cases before Judge Wickham. It is one of the same family of cases in which Col. Don Morrison is so much interested. Mr. Henderson spoke with about two dozen formidable legal volumes spread out before him on a table.

Conroy vs. Hunt.

This morning the assault and battery case of John J. Conroy vs. Charles L. Hunt, was taken up in the Court of Criminal Correction. The affair occurred on the 23d of the present month at the store of W. O. Gibson, corner of Sixth and Market streets. Conroy, the prosecuting witness, resides at No. 1421 Webster avenue, while the defendant occupies apartments at Hunt's Hotel, corner of Ninth and Chestnut streets. The only witnesses examined were J. J. Conroy, Walter Walsh, W. O. Gibson and Bolivar Owen. Their testimony, with the exception of the first named, was that Mr. Hunt accused Conroy of starting false reports about him. At this Conroy made for Hunt and knocked him to the floor. The Court, in view of the facts, discharged Mr. Hunt, and Conroy was called upon to pay the costs of the case.

Redemeier's Alleged Insanity.

Mr. Merrick, the attorney for H. J. Redemeier, under sentence to be hanged the 23d of April, has had a consultation with E. T. Farrish, legal adviser of Sheriff Finn, and reports that the Sheriff has concluded to summon a jury to inquire into the alleged insanity of the condemned murderer. Mr. Merrick states that the jury will be called the present week, but will not commence its investigations before next Monday. It is expected that the meetings will be held in the Police Court-room at the Four Courts during the afternoon. Probably the entire week will be consumed in submitting the testimony in behalf of the prisoner Redemeier.

The Merchants' Exchange—Delegation to St. Joe.

The members of the Merehants' Exchange who accepted an invitation to be present at the celebration of the St. Joe Merchants' Exchange, departed last night.

A telegram, as follows, was received at the Merchants' Exchange at 3 p. m.:

ST. JOE, March 30.

D. R. Whitmore, Merchants' Exchange:
Delegation arrived safely. Having big time.
GEO. H. MORGAN.

A $100,000 Structure to be Erected.

William J. Lemp, the brewer, was granted permission to-day by the Chief of the Fire Department to close Cherokee street while erecting a structure to be used as cooling and ice houses, on the west side of Carondelet avenue and Cherokee street. The building is to be a three-story brick of three rooms, and will be 179 feet front by 85 feet deep. The time granted for its completion is twelve months, and it is estimated that when completed it will cost $100,000.

ABOUT TOWN.

DR. GEORGE B. HOMAN had a charge of violating health ordinances preferred against J. B. S. Lemoine in the Second District Police Court to-day, and the defendant, failing to answer, was fined $500 by default.

THIS morning T. M. Kelley, a laborer on the K. C. and N. Railroad, accidentally fell off switch engine 76 at the Salisbury street crossing and sustained several severe contusions about the head, and was also injured internally, which may result in his death. The railroad company has him well attended.

THIS evening the fair and festival in aid of St. Patrick's Boys' Free Schools will open at the Hall. Arrangements have been completed that promise to make the affair a most enjoyable one. Persons holding tickets will be admitted free on presentation of the tickets at the door this evening, so that the ticket can be used again.

THIS morning two suspicious-looking characters on North Broadway were arrested and lodged in Captain Dailey's retreat, Tenth and North Market streets. They failed to give a reasonable account of themselves, and had a large stone hammer, monkey-wrench and chisel, and something that had the appearance of a burglar's mouth-gag.

HENRY ALTEMEYER was arraigned in the Second District Police Court to-day on the charge of driving an old and disabled horse. The defendant had a horse surgeon to testify to the fact that large sores visible on the horse were caused by a disease of the blood, but several witnesses said they resulted from the use of a bad collar. Altemeyer was fined $10 for cruelty to animals.

MONEY.

Business with the banks was a trifle better than yesterday, still on the whole quiet and with little special demand for money. Discount offerings included grain, flour and cotton carrying and shipping, with jobbing and manufacturing paper, and the usual miscellaneous matters; rates hold steady at 8@10 per cent. Eastern exchange was a shade firmer and quotable at nearer 50c discount, but dull. Stocks were firm and money at New York very stiff. Investment securities here are all in brisk demand and firm.

Robert E. M. Bain, Foreign Exchange, 104 N. Third street. reports: Prime bankers' sterling, 484½@487¾; commercial 60-days sterling, 483@483½; do demand, 486⅜@487; do 60-days francs, 524⅜@522½; do demand, 520⅝@519⅜; do 60-days reichs marks, 94¼@⅜; do demand, 94¾; do 60-days guilders and florins, 39⅜. Market weak, further decline expected. Bankers' nominal; rates declined ⅛ point.

Breadstuffs and Provisions.

Cash wheat was irregular. On account of the sharp milling and shipping demand and the near close of the month, No. 2 red sold higher and held pretty firm at $1 121¼@$1 121¼, with fairly liberal transactions; No. 3 was lower and slow at $1 16@$1 15¾, but all other grades were very dull and nominal. Cash corn was lower all round, but unusually active; No. 2 mixed dropped down to 35c, at which speculative buyers took hold, and at the call some 400 cars were sold; white mixed was in good order and shipping demand, and sold at 36@36⅛c. Order buyers took rejected corn at 35@34⅛c, and do white-mixed at 35⅛c. Oats was lower and quiet. No. 2 sold at 32⅛c, and rejected at 31c, all in a small way. Rye sold lightly at 62½c, but most buyers were out at that figure. Pork and bacon were lower and dull. Dry salt meats unchanged, but slow.

MORNING BOARD—FUTURES.

Wheat—Opened lower, advanced to about last night's closing prices and then eased off, closing weak; sales early were fairly liberal, but light later. April sold at $1 21@1 21⅛@1 20, May $1 19⅛@1 18⅛@1 18¾, June $1 12@1 11¾, July $1@99⅛c.

Corn—Lower and weak. Sales early were fair, but after the call the market was slow and steady. April sold at 34 15-16@34⅞c, May at 35 7-16@35⅝c, June at 35⅛@35⅝c, July at 36⅛c, white mixed—May at 37⅛@36⅞c, June 37⅛@37⅛c.

Oats—Lower and very dull. The only sales were of May at 32⅛@32 5-16c. April was offered at 33c. June at 32⅞c.

MORNING BOARD—CASH.

Flour—Receipts 4,363 brls; shipments by rail 5,355 brls. Dull and drooping. Grade sales: 100 brls choice $5 60. Fancy offered at $6, $5 80 bid; family $5 60, no bid; xx $5 25, no bid; x $5, no bid; superfine $5, no bid; fine $4 10, no bid.

Wheat—The market opened dull and lower, and scarcely anything was done before call. Millers and speculators competed for No. 2 red, which sold generally ⅛c lower than yesterday's closing price. No. 3 red opened ⅛c lower, but recovered to yesterday's closing price. No. 4 was dull and neglected; offered at yesterday's price, ⅛c less bid. Sample lots were quiet and weak; little very desirable stock in the offerings. Grade sales: 16 cars No. 2 red reg. 12 cars in E St L el and 1 car and 5,000 bu in Advance el, all at $1 21¼; 2 cars in E St L el at $1 21¼; same bid on call for more car lots in St L or E St L el; $1 21¼ bid more regular, and $1 21⅜ bid for 5,000 bu strictly fresh; later, car lots sold at $1 21¼; 1 car No. 3 Red in Venice elev. at $1 15⅝; 2 cars this side at $1 15¾; 18 cars regular at $1 16; 2 cars No. 2 White at $1 20⅛; No. 4 Winter offered this side at $1 11, $1 10½ bid; No. 3 Mediterranean at $1 16, no bid.

Corn—Grades—No. 2 mixed sold largely to the speculative trade at ⅛c decline at 35c; rejected in fair order demand at 34c to 34⅛c; closing at former price (1⅛c lower); No. 2 white mixed in fair order demand at 36c fresh regular and 36⅛c Central (⅜@⅛c lower); rejected do lower, offered at 35⅛c, bid 35¼. Samples fairly active, but lower. Grade sales: 328 cars No. 2 mixed fresh and str fr 35; 15,000 bu and 10 cars do regular at same; 1 car rejected str fr St L 34; 3 do do 34⅛@44¼; 2 do do 34; 58 cars No. 2 white-mixed fresh and str fr regular and 6 cars regular St L 36; 3 do Central 36⅛; 3 cars rejected do this side p. t.

Oats—Grades—No. 2 white bid steady in St. Louis at 35c, none offered; rejected was in fair order request but lower, opening at yesterday's bid (31), but subsequently declining and closing ⅛c lower at 30¾; No. 2 dull and drooping, opening steady at 32¾, but closing ⅛c off at 32⅛. Samples easier with fair trading. Grade sales: 1 car No. 2 St. L. (early) 32¾; 1 do later 32⅛; 1 rejected do 31; 3 do do 30¾.

Hay—Receipts 1,341 bales; shipments by rail 237 bales. Scarce, with an urgent demand and firm but unchanged market. Sales: On East track 1 car clover mixed $13; 3 strictly prime timothy $15@15 50; fancy do $18. This side—1 choice prairie $11; 1 clover-mixed $13; 200 bales of choice timothy on orders $18.

Millfeed—Scarce and wanted at higher figures. Sales: Sacked—2 cars bran at city mills 71; 2 do do 72, same bid for more; 1 car shipstuff on track this side 82¾; 1 do f. o. b. this side at same.

Provisions—There was a reaction to-day from yesterday's advance in the entire hog product. Prices were lower, and a very limited business was transacted. Nothing was reported in cash pork, which was held at $11 12½ f o b east side. D.S. clear ribs sold yesterday p. m. at 6.40, and to-day fully-cured up country at equal to 6.30 here. Bacon sides sold 10c lower.

Pork—Sales: On orders, 225 brls mess $11 30; 60 at $11 37½; 100 at $11 50. Held at $11 12½ cash f. o. b. East side.

D. S. Meat—Sales 125,000 lbs clear ribs, part yesterday p. m., 6.40; 225,000 lbs do East side, part yesterday p. m., 6.35@6.40; 50,000 lbs cured do up country, freight here 15c, at 6.15; on orders, 50 pkgs: long clear 6⅝, clear ribs 6⅝@6¾, clear sides 6⅞. At call 3⅞ bid for fully-cured shoulders loose.

Bacon—Sales: 35,000 lbs loose long clear, 6.85; 35 boxes do 7; 35 pkgs clear ribs 7.40; 30 do clear sides 7.30@7.35; on orders, 20 pkgs clear ribs 7.15; 85 pkgs: shoulders 4⅜, clear ribs 7¼@½, clear sides 7⅜@⅝. We quote c. s. c. hams at 8⅞@10⅛.

Country Meat—Sales: 2,000 lbs smoked plain hams at 7¼, and 800 lbs do choice shoulders 4¼.

Lard—Sales: Yesterday 1,700 tcs p. t.—understood to be at a fraction under 7c; to-day, 100 tcs loose at 6.60; 50 tcs do at 6.65; 6.80 bid packed. Small sales refined tierce on orders at 7⅝c.

AFTERNOON BOARD—2:30 TO 3 P. M.

Wheat—Lower and weak. Sales: April at $1 20⅛@$1 19⅛c; May $1 18⅛@$1 18⅜c; June $1 12@$1 11⅞c; July 99⅛c; year 95½@95c.

Corn—Steady and unchanged. Sales of April at 34⅞c, May 35⅜c, June 35⅝c, and May white-mixed at 36⅞c.

Oats—Dull. June sold at 32⅛c.

Closing Prices at Chicago.

CATTLE—Good, prime and fancy native steers of 1,500 lbs and over in demand and scarce, and values on these grades higher than on Friday or yesterday. This morning a fancy drove of native steers of 1,692 lbs average bought $5 60 per 100 lbs, the highest price of the season. Jackman, Hickman & Company, commission salesmen, were the sellers, and T. C. Eastman, of New York, the purchaser. Yesterday afternoon the market was fairly active, and the supply changed hands at steady prices. One lot of Montana steers of 1,781 lbs bought $5 20 per 100 lbs. Business this forenoon was only moderately active. Supply light and mainly of medium to fair native steers, and these were slow in going off from the fact that shippers expect a large run of these grades to-morrow and perchance might buy them cheaper. Butchers' stuff quiet and unchanged. Stockers and feeders in fair inquiry and light supply. Milch cows with calves in demand. Ruling quotations steady.

Run Away.

Last night as Henry Schinkel, a driver for Herman Holtman, whose establishment is located on Vandeventer avenue near Baker avenue, was driving a team of horses attached to a light delivery wagon, the animals became frightened and ran away. The horses were scared by the falling of a barrel from the wagon which was caused by a washout on Lindell avenue near Cabanne avenue. The driver was thrown out, but in some manner became entangled in the lines and was dragged about a block before the horses could be stopped. He received several bad bruises but was not otherwise injured by the accident.

A Solemn Ceremony.

This morning Father Burke, of the Cathedral, visited the jail and administered the rites of communion to the two doomed murderers Edward Nugent and Mat Lewis, who have become members of the Catholic Church. The ceremony, impressive and sacred as performed in church, was rendered doubly so this morning as conducted within the narrow cells of the men, who are sentenced to be hanged on the 23d of next April. Both of these men are sanguine that new trials will be granted on and that their execution will not occur 23d of next month.

Burglar's Tools.

Detectives Babill and Tucker made an important arrest a short time ago in the person of Patrick Murphy, a young man who was seen loitering about the lower part of Market street. The man was arrested on suspicion, and subsequent search of his person revealed the fact that he was supplied with fine skeleton keys of the most approved pattern. This morning Murphy had trial before Judge Decko, on a charge of carrying burglars' tools. The prisoner called for a jury trial, and such request was granted him. The prisoner was fined $500.

THE ROCK SPRINGS MURDER.

A Quarrel Which Originated in a Question of Natural History.

The Inquest Held To-Day on the Body of Annie Banks.

On account of the sickness of Dr. Auler, Mr. Frank O'Neil, the Deputy Coroner, this morning empaneled a jury and held an inquest on the body of Annie Banks, the negro woman who was murdered by her husband, Jim Banks, at Rock Springs on Sunday night. There was some difficulty experienced in getting a jury, and it was half-past 10 before the requisite gentlemen were found, and in the meantime the prisoner was brought to the Coroner's office handcuffed and attended by several policemen.

JAMES BANKS

is a cruel, sullen-looking negro, nearly sixty years of age, but with the African character of not showing his age upon his face. His kinky hair is grizzled and turning gray, and one side of his face, the left, is swollen from the effect of a heavy blow. His face is a deep black, the eyes are lowering and the jaw frescoed with a sprangly whisker; his beard and mustache are well grown and grizzly. He was dressed in a decent black coat and pants with a brown check shirt and in appearance had nothing to distinguish him from the ordinary Mississippi fieldhand brought North by the exodus.

After a time the jury and the witnesses formed into procession and marched round to the Morgue, where the dead body was lying. Usually in such cases there is a crowd of people collected about the building, but the death of a Mississippi negro was apparently not an attraction, the draw consisting of not more than a dozen boys and school children. Inside the Morgue the jurymen were first marshaled into the presence of

THE DEAD WOMAN.

She was lying upon the table in the back room, denuded of her clothing and covered by a rubber tarpaulin, which was turned down so as to show her face and to cover the rest of her person. The head was decorated with long, thin platts of hair, which stood out grotesquely, and spread upon the boards upon which she was lying. Her face was in repose, and looked rather sharpened by care and worry. When the jurymen and witnesses had gathered in, the doors were closed, and Mr. O'Neil proceeded to give the necessary oaths. The prisoner was unshackled and asked if he knew the woman. "Yes, sah, I do. She's my beloved wife," he answered, and in response to the usual queries he said that he wanted to make a sworn statement. Just as the party were turning to leave the room in which the corpse was lying Banks asked to be released long enough to kiss his wife, but his request was, for the time being, denied, and he was told that as soon as his testimony was taken he would be permitted to see her again and kiss her if he wished. The death wound in the breast was shown to the jury.

The Inquest.

The first witness called was the murderer himself, who talked rapidly and nervously in a broad Southern dialect. He stated two or three times that he wanted to tell why he had shot his wife, and his story runs nearly as follows: "I'm fifty-seven or eight years old, gen'lmen. I was a little boy in Virginia the time the stars busted. I was four year ole then. Befo' the war I was a house servant in the Jefferson family in Mississippi, and since I've been farmin' in Hines and Bolivar counties, Mississippi. I married Annie about four years ago. She had two husbands before I had her. We came north to St. Louis about two months ago with the exodus. I did odd jobs, picked rags and sich, and I allowed my wife to cook 'casionally for Capt. W. G. Bartle. She brought home fifty cents with her, and I told her that wasn't enough money, and that she must not go there to work any more. Bimebye, however, she hired out by the month to Cap'n Bartle's lady. I was there one evening to take her home when she and Cap'n Bartle's son was in the next room a-talking about whether a cow and a pig was a mixture: then she came out to where I was, and I took up the discussion, and we argued it all the way home, and got mad about it, and at last I gave her a push, and the next time she wouldn't come home no more. Then Cap'n Bartle told me not to come round there any more, but I used to see my wife sometimes, and at last I packed her clothes up and brought 'em to her, but she sent them back. On Sunday I asked her to take me for good, and also whether she was coming back or not; but she wouldn't tell. This was about noon. I had to leave because they told me Cap'n Bartle was comin', and then I went and gave a woman a five-dollar clock to go and try get my wife back, but it was no use. In the evening I went to the house to see her, not intending to shoot her, but wanting her to come out and talk to me. I saw her in the dining-room, and I fired through the window, not wanting to hurt her but to scare her so that she would come back to me. I then went over to East St. Louis, where I had moved, and was arrested just as I was starting down the river. I didn't know then that I had hurt her, and God knows I did not mean to." The prisoner then signed his name in sprawling, irregular letters and withdrew to another chair.

MRS. MARY C. BARTLE,

in whose employ the murdered woman was when she was killed, was then called and her testimony taken. "I am the wife of Wm. G. Bartle," she said, "and we live on the Clayton road and Sarpy avenue, and have known the deceased for three or four weeks, during most of which time she was in my employ. Her husband, whom I identify as the prisoner here, called at the house several times to see his wife. One Sunday morning she said she felt bad, that her husband had struck her and abused her during the past night. At last when he came she ran up stairs and refused to see him, and would not go home with him. I told him that I was not keeping his wife from seeing him or from going with him, and after that she did not go home for two weeks, until last Sunday. In the meantime her husband used to call frequently, and I made her go out in the yard and see him, but she would not go home with him. At last I told her that I could not be bothered that way any longer, that she would have to leave, and she cried and begged to stay so hard that I let her. On Sunday as we were coming home from church we caught a glimpse of him in the yard, and she said he had been there again. All of that afternoon she passed with the children a happy and contented girl. We had tea about 7 o'clock; my husband went in his daughter's room and my little son followed in there. He remained there a little time, and then came back and shook the crumbs off of the table-cloth to a little dog that was on the porch, and just as he was stepping back into the room we heard the report of a pistol. We were in the adjoining room. I thought the dishes had fallen, but hearing her scream I thought that my husband had been shot. She ran to the foot of the stairs. She was washing the dishes at the time and the bullet came through the glasss in the window by which she was standing. Dr. Barker examined her in a few moments after the shooting and declared her injuries mortal. While she was falling she said, 'Oh, Banks, my husband, has killed me.' She also complained of the pain in her breast, and was perfectly sensible. She was put in an ambulance and taken right to the hospital."

CAPT. WM. G. BARTLE

was next called to the stand and testified to having known of the employment of Annie Banks and the trouble with her husband. "Banks met us one morning at the gate and asked me if he couldn't go in and get his breakfast. I had forbidden him to come to the house. I gave him a quarter and told him to go and buy his breakfast. He wanted me to turn his wife out, and annoyed me every time we met. He said she wouldn't come as long as we employed her. I asked his wife about the matter and she said that he had kicked her and stamped her and beat her. She was afraid to leave, because she thought he would beat her again. The last time I saw him about the place was on Sunday night when I was getting home from church. He was in the yard close by the church, but he ran off at once. In the evening we had tea, and, after it was over, I gathered up the table-cloth and shook the crumbs off on the porch to a dog. Just as I was stepping inside the door the crash came. She was washing dishes at a table in the room. I was three feet from her when she was shot. He must have taken a line shot, for the ball had to come through the windows in a peculiar way to strike her. I saw the flash. He had to get close to the wall to shoot. I imagined that I saw Banks' face close to the window when the shot was fired. I thought she was not shot at first, and tried to encourage her, but she screamed out that Banks had shot her. I fired two shots in the direction that I thought the murderer had taken. This was about a quarter to 8 o'clock." At the conclusion of his testimony the inquest adjourned till 2 o'clock.

SACREDLY SECURE.

The Money of a Deceased Druid Can Not Go to Common Creditors.

The Court of Appeals Renders a Decision of Importance to Members of Secret Orders.

The Court of Appeals this morning rendered an opinion in the case of Carl Schmidt, administrator of Carl Haach, deceased, vs. Grand Grove of the Ancient Order of Druids and Franklin Grove Lodge No. 16, which has some points of interest to the members of co-operative insurance societies.

THE OPINION.

This is an action to recover from the defendant Groves the sum of $700. The action is by the administrator of Haach, who was shown to have died a member in good standing of the subordinate Grove Lodge No. 16. The cause was tried without a jury and the finding and judgment were for the defendants.

The act of incorporation of the Grand Grove provides that it is organized for the purpose of rendering aid to the members and their families in case of sickness, accident or death, and of making provision against the calamities to which men are liable, and it is divided for the purpose into subordinate groves. The property is to be used only for the purpose of creating a fund to aid the sick and needy, to bury the dead, to aid the families of the sick and needy and deceased members, and for educational and hospital purposes, and for the expenses of meetings and regalia. Section 1 of article 10 provides that the relief fund of the order "is created mainly for the purpose of protecting from immediate want the surviving family and relations depending on the former earnings of the deceased brother, and the amount to be paid them shall be issued for their support.

NO DEBTS WHATEVER,

except the necessary funeral expenses of the deceased brothers, shall be paid out of such relief money, and no creditor or administrator shall have any claim on it, or on any part of it." And section 7 of the same article provides that "subordinate groves may allow $75 for the funeral expenses of a deceased member, on account of the $700 relief money, to his relatives who take care of the funeral." The by-laws provide that "at the time of the death of a brother of any grove of the U. A. O. D. in the State of Missouri, the Grand Grove of the State, if the conditions specified are fulfilled, pay $700 to the following heirs: 1. To the widow, or if there is no widow living, to his children in equal parts. If the widow lived apart from the deceased, but has not been divorced, then shall his children have the preference to the relief money. If there are neither children nor widow at the time of the death of the brother, then shall the relief money go to the person or persons to whom it is made over by the deceased by his last will. If no will of such deceased brother is found then the money is to be delivered to his father, mother, brothers and sisters, if any, in equal parts. Other relatives cannot claim any part of the relief money. If none of the above mentioned heirs can be found, then the balance, after funeral expenses are deducted, shall remain in the hands of the grand Treasurer and be credited to each Grove at the next case of death." The charter expressly provides that the powers conferred shall not be used for insurance purposes.

IT WAS ADMITTED

that plaintiff had paid the funeral expenses of deceased, amounting to $95, out of funds in his hands as administrator, and had received $75 on account thereof from defendants pending the suit, and before trial. It further appeared that Haach died unmarried, without issue, that he had no father, brother or sister living when he died, and that his mother is still living.

We are unable to see upon what theory this action was brought. It seems quite clear that the administrator of deceased has no claim upon the money. It is suggested by the counsel for plaintiff in error that the contract between the deceased and the groves was within the statute of frauds. That can be no reason for changing its terms. No contract, express or implied, is shown upon the part of anybody to pay anything at any time to the general representatives of the deceased, to his executor or administrator, or to his creditors. Judge Hayden concurs. Judge Lewis is absent. R. A. BAKEWELL.

CITY PERSONALS.

Col. J. W. Paramore has gone on a brief visit to New York.

Mr. Thomas Allen will return from New York the first of next week.

Gen. John Marmaduke, of the Board of Railroad Commissioners, is very busy with official duties just now.

Mr. H. Martin Williams, of Greenback fame, arrived in the city this morning, and will be here for several days.

Mr. Watkins, the husband of Alice Oates, is very devoted to his wife. He attends her behind the scenes at every performance.

Mr. Edwin Silver, Private Secretary to Governor Hardin, is in the city working up the Gubernatorial canvass of Gen. Hockaday.

Judge Warwick Hough, of the State Supreme Court, was present at Neilson's farewell, last Saturday night, and will be in the city most of this week.

Mr. Joseph Otten, the well-known organist, is very averse to being addressed as Professor, and always mildly corrects his friends who confer this title upon him.

Harry Phillips, the well known theatrical manager, has been engaged by Mr. Hayden for three years as business manager for the Tom Keene "starring" combination.

Mr. William H. Starr, assistant foreman of the POST-DISPATCH composing-room, celebrated his twenty-first birthday to-day and received the congratulations of numerous friends.

Maj. W. F. Melbourne has a daughter of decided dramatic ability. She is only sixteen years old, but can repeat, entire, half a dozen of Shakspeare's plays. Besides this, she is very pretty.

Dr. Robinson, of the Dispensary, is one of the busiest men in the city. He starts out at six in the morning and seldom gets home before eleven o'clock at night. He is at home so little that he takes a day off once in three months to renew the acquaintance of his babies.

The Roman States Excited Over the Discovery of PURE NATIVE SULPHUR
Of Great Medical Value in Curing Blood and Skin Diseases.
GOOD NEWS INDEED
This Must be to the Thousands in This Country Suffering From Impure Blood and Rough, Dry, Scaly and Pimply Skin Diseases, When They Learn That Glenn's Sulphur Soap Contains This Precious Medicinal Sulphur.

ALL SKIN DISEASES are more or less constitutional or dependent upon some specific poison in the Blood, which must be eradicated before it is possible to remove the appearance of it from the surface, and there is but one way known to the profession to accomplish this end, and that is to neutralize the poison by the use of PURE SULPHUR in some form or other, and experience has proved that in a very large proportion of cases it can be done more effectually and more rapidly by the use of sulphur in soap, and the best combination of this kind and the one now generally used is GLENN'S SULPHUR SOAP. It is prepared expressly to cure. See that "C. N. CRITTENTON, Proprietor," is printed on each packet, without which none is genuine. Sold by all druggists at 25c; 3 cakes 60c. Sent by mail on receipt of price, and 5c extra for each cake. C. N. CRITTENTON, 7 Sixth avenue, New York.

COURT OF CRIMINAL CORRECTION.

A Number of Cases Dismissed, and Others Tried During the Morning Hour.

This morning the trial of Edward Leager and Thomas Bailey, charged with an attempt at petit larceny, took place, and resulted in the acquittal of the prisoners. Ambrose Miror, who lives at 404 South Main street, was the prosecuting witness, and he accused them of trying to walk off with an iron door belonging to a stove. William Gallagher was also discharged after an examination. J. C. Delaney, of 5111 Nebraska avenue, alleged that Gallagher used a pistol on him and therefore preferred a charge of assault with intent to kill. The case of Henry Cunningham, charged with an assault to kill George Plowman, was continued generally. Edward Oden pleaded guilty to assaulting Lillie Patterson, a colored damsel who is employed at 3200 Pine street. Edward was fined $1. Henry Chapman and David Perkins were arrested a few days ago on a charge of stealing sixty pounds of cotton from the St. Louis Cotton Compress Company. This morning their case was called, when a nolle pros. was entered by the Prosecuting Attorney, and the two prisoners were discharged. Mary Hazelman was sent to the jail five days for stealing a ham from W. J. Tobin of No. 800 Franklin avenue. W. H. Dean received one month in the Work-house, on account of the larceny of a tobacco knife which was taken from W. H. Stromberg, 1226 Broadway.

MCELRATH'S stock of jewelry is now full, and comprises all the latest novelties for men's wear. His stock of scarf pins cannot be surpassed, at 509 North Sixth street.

East St. Louis.

Mike Nolan was fined $3 for disturbing the peace.

The Belleville Daily Times did not appear as usual to-day owing to some trouble between the proprietors and employes, which will be adjusted as soon as possible.

Robert Duffy appears before 'Squire Graney to-day to answer the charge of assaulting a young negro woman named Annie Jones, who came to East St. Louis lately.

Ed Row was fined costs by 'Squire Graney this morning, but appealed his case to the Circuit Court. Row was incarcerated a few nights ago and is meditating sueing somebody for damage.

Emile Marschall, the little Belgian who was lost at the Relay Depot, is still at the Police Station. The police have not yet notified any of the authorities and are endeavoring to secure a home for the boy with some of the French farmers in the American Bottom.

THERE are no shoddy goods in stock, but good, reliable goods sold cheap at MCELRATH'S, 509 North Sixth street.

Fair and Festival of the Holy Angels.

The fair and festival inaugurated at Masonic Hall last night by the ladies of the Church of the Holy Angels was a pronounced success, both the attendance and the receipts being unexpectedly large. The refreshment tables, the art gallery and the various stands where fancy articles and confectioneries are dispensed were in charge of well-known and popular society ladies. A central point of interest last evening was the poll where a vote was being taken for a handsome gold watch to be presented to the most popular lady of the Holy Angels' parish. There are seven candidates, and the rivalry will doubtless be very lively to-night, as the friends of each are expected to be there in full force. Postlewaite's band furnishes the music, and dancing will be a favorite amusement. A view of the marvelous art gallery, in charge of one of the prettiest belles of Chouteau avenue, is worth many times the price of admission.

'TWILL pay you well to examine McElrath's stock before buying your spring outfit of socks, underwear, scarfs, handkerchiefs, etc., at 509 North Sixth street.
